WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission demands compassionate, massive and sustained efforts—perhaps costing more money than the Vietnam war—to end the destruction and bitterness wrought by racial disorder in America's cities.

It reeled off scores of recommendations, including vastly expanded programs to provide 2 million jobs, 6 million housing units, drastically improved school systems and overhaul of the welfare system designed to guarantee all Americans "a minimum standard of decent living."

The commission didn't estimate the cost of its proposals, saying only they "will require unprecedented levels of funding and performance." It seemed obvious, though, that the price tag could exceed even the $25 billion annual outlay for the Vietnam war.

New taxes must be imposed if necessary, the panel told President Johnson, but "there can be no higher priority for national action and on higher claim on the nation's conscience."

The commission spent seven months investigating riots in Newark, Detroit and 21 other cities. It concluded: "The urban disorders of the summer of 1967 were not caused by, nor were they the consequence of, any organized plan or conspiracy."

But militant organizations and individual agitators, it added, "helped to create an atmosphere that contributed to the outbreak of disorder." And it warned "that the continuation of disorders and the polarization of the races would provide fertile ground for organized exploitation in the future."

Among the commission's proposed remedies:

- Immediate action to create 2 million new jobs in the next three years—1 million by private industry and 1 million by local, state and federal governments. In the first year, it urged 250,000 public-sector jobs and 300,000 private-sector jobs.
- Tax incentives and other subsidies for industries that locate in poverty areas, both urban and rural, and which give on-the-job training to hard-core unemployed.
- Vigorous moves to flatten artificial barriers to employment, "including not only racial discrimination but, in certain cases, arrest records or lack of a high school diploma." It said federal funds should be withheld "from activities which discriminate on grounds of color or race."
- Sharply increased efforts to eliminate de facto segregation and racial discrimination in all schools, North and South, by sternly applying civil rights laws.
- Early childhood education for "every disadvantaged child" (Continued on Page 14)

State Solons Speed Bills; Hold Pay Hike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's 107th General Assembly was set to wind up business today on all items except a possible legislative pay raise, which may be put off for three weeks to give members a chance to take soundings in their home districts.

Leaders announced plans for a three-step "sine die", or final adjournment Thursday as agreement neared on the administration's $750 million bond issue and the salary bill which also would include judges and elected county officials.

Both houses ground out major bills at top speed during a 12-hour legislative day that included these actions:

A six-member conference committee went to work on the bond issue proposal and members said they foresaw no major problems in getting an agreement between the two houses.

Liberals Hit Dirksen Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate liberals have accused Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of endangering the civil rights bill by proposing a modified open-housing section after agreeing with them on broader legislation.

They also attacked Thursday an open-housing amendment put forward by Dirksen's son-in-law, Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn. But a Dirksen aide and Baker indicated it never was clear just what was to be in the new compromise open-housing proposal forged by Dirksen and the liberals.

"I regret that anyone has seen the necessity to file amendments that could jeopardize passage of this legislation," said Republican Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, the Senate's only Negro member.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said, "I think the bargain has been made and ought to be kept."

The civil rights bill, which has been before the Senate since Jan. 15, could face a first test vote today on Dirksen's debate-ending petition. However, Dirksen said it might be delayed until early next week at the request of Southern senators who want more time to study the bill.

House Clears Part of LBJ Tax Program

Excise Tax Cuts Delayed by Move Without Roll Call

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has cleared a $3 billion segment of President Johnson's tax program amid indications its key committee may be softening its opposition to the proposed income tax hike.

But a move already is under way in the Senate that could further endanger the administration's over-all tax program.

The House passed Thursday, without even calling the roll, legislation to continue beyond their April 1 drop-off dates the present excise taxes on automobiles and telephone service. The bill also provides for a speed-up in corporation income tax collections.

The proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge remains bottled up in the House Ways and Means Committee. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said he is looking for more budget cutting before considering the tax increase.

But Mills conceded—for perhaps the first time since Johnson offered the tax boost plan last year—that certain circumstances could force Congress' hand on the tax hike.

Among these potential factors he included "substantial acceleration in war expenditures" and "substantial inflationary pressures."

Plans already are under way in the Senate to try to tie the income tax increase to the excise tax bill. It would be part of a package also including mandatory spending cuts up to $7 billion and perhaps quotas on imported goods.

Unless Mills and his colleagues change their course, there is little likelihood the House would accept such additions—even if the Senate were to vote them.

Dismiss 4 More Jurors

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP)—Four more prospective jurors were excused from serving in the murder trial of an Ohio woman because they said they oppose the death penalty. Only five of the candidates queried so far have said they might consider death the penalty under certain circumstances.

Carolyn O. Wilkins, 33, of Newark, Ohio, faces a possible death sentence in San Juan's federal court on a charge of first-degree murder in the Nov. 19, 1966 fatal stabbing of her Army Sergeant husband, Wesley Wilkins. The sergeant was found dead in the couple's residence in Ft. Buchanan, near San Juan.

Jury selection started Wednesday and 76 jury candidates have already been dismissed on grounds that they oppose the death penalty.

Walk Out Again

CLEVELAND (AP) — About 1,100 installers and repairmen for the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. walked off the job again today in a dispute over suspension of a worker for refusing to work overtime.

McCall said he hoped to circulate a round-robin to the governors by mail and get 15 or 16 of them to sign, urging Rockefeller to make himself available as a candidate before the March 19 close of filing in Oregon's May 28 primary.

Nixon closed a speech to a large audience in Lebanon by saying:

"Go forth from this room and show that New Hampshire says that it's time for Lyndon Johnson to go back to Texas and that as New Hampshire goes, so goes the nation."

The audience exploded with applause.

Earlier, Nixon referred indirectly to Romney's withdrawal by saying, "Your votes still matter." He told the crowd,

Reds Hit Khe Sanh

McNAMARA TO HAVE BANKERS' HOURS — Robert S. McNamara, departing from the President's cabinet after seven years as secretary of Defense to become president of the World Bank, is overcome with emotion after President Johnson presented the Distinguished Civilian Service Award to him at the White House. Mrs. McNamara holds the award.

Hard-Liner Clifford Steps In As U.S. Defense Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clark M. Clifford, reputedly a hard-liner on the Vietnam war, took the oath today as the nation's ninth secretary of defense.

Clifford was overlooked by many of the spectators who stood in the rain Thursday outside the Pentagon to applaud outgoing Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

But today Clifford becomes the Pentagon's kingpin, boss of 3.4 million military men, more than one million civilian employees and a spending budget of about $76 billion.

There has been speculation that Clifford, who left one of Washington's most prosperous law practices, may serve as kind of a caretaker Pentagon chief until after the November election.

By this reasoning, Johnson would have a trusted long-time associate in the critical post during the election year and then—if re-elected—could search for a longer term Cabinet officer if Clifford preferred to return to law.

At his late-January confirmation hearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Clifford testified that in accepting Johnson's call he had not placed any limitation on the period he was willing to serve.

"I am ready and prepared to serve for whatever length of time he chooses me to do so," Clifford said.

The new defense chief has had a long association with defense matters, dating back to Truman administration days when he helped write the law which unified the military services.

As an adviser to Johnson, he has been in on many of the critical White House conferences at which major decisions on the course of the Vietnam war have been made.

Although not yet secretary, he participated this week in White House conferences reappraising U.S. strategy in Vietnam and considering what sources said was a request by Gen. William C. Westmoreland for about 100,000 more U.S. troops in Vietnam.

Sources in position to know picture Clifford as something more of a hard-liner on Vietnam than McNamara has been, although the degree of difference is said to have been less than a gulf.

Teacher Strikes Spread; Thousands of Pupils Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Strikes by militant teachers' unions disrupted classes and forced school closings today which affected thousands of pupils in three states.

The midwinter discontent recalled the wave of similar strikes which swept a score of the nation's school systems last fall forcing almost a million pupils to stay at home.

Latest city to be hit was San Francisco where the 1,400-member American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, voted Thursday to strike the public school system to back its demands for improvements.

Pittsburgh school officials ordered high schools closed today in the face of the crippling teacher's strike which began Thursday but said they would try to keep elementary schools operating.

Florida teacher representatives and the state's top education official agreed Thursday on a compromise proposal to end the nine-day strike by a third of the state's 60,000 teachers. One county board rejected the plan, placing its success in jeopardy.

San Francisco school administrators pledged every effort to keep the schools open in the face of a walkout by the union whose membership comprises roughly one-third of the city's 4,000 teachers.

The rival San Francisco Classroom Teachers Association has about 2,600 members, most of them elementary school teachers. Association President Victor B. Graff said, "The vast majority of San Francisco teachers will honor their contracts."

Turn Down Bid by Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — The House of Representatives today overwhelmingly rejected a bid by President Nguyen Van Thieu for special powers in the face of the Communist military offensive.

Members voted 85-10 to deny the president's request Feb. 9 for the power to promulgate decrees on economic and financial affairs for one year. Eight representatives abstained.

The vote by the 135-member House, 103 of whom were present, does not affect the state of martial law proclaimed by Thieu after the Communists launched their attacks against the cities Jan. 30.

Governors Push Rocky as Nixon Changes Emphasis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Republican governors have advised their colleagues they better start pushing a draft-Rockefeller bandwagon now or it may never get rolling.

Govs. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland and Tom McCall of Oregon, who long have urged Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to enter the GOP presidential race, expressed certainty Thursday the New Yorker will not lend himself to any last-ditch attempt by party moderates to stop former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Agnew and McCall made clear they are interpreting Rockefeller's position as demanding substantial support from party moderates—including most of the 26 GOP governnors—before he'll consider running.

The advice by the two Rockefeller backers was indirectly echoed by Nixon, left virtually alone in the GOP race by the abrupt withdrawal of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

Nixon said in New Hampshire that Rockefeller will have to enter some state presidential primaries if he wants the nomination.

"No one is going to be drafted for this nomination," said Nixon. "No one is going to back into it."

Whether the 21 GOP state executives attending the National Governors Conference in Washington would find time to caucus among themselves remained questionable.

McCall said he hoped to circulate a round-robin to the governors by mail and get 15 or 16 of them to sign, urging Rockefeller to make himself available as a candidate before the March 19 close of filing in Oregon's May 28 primary.

Nixon closed a speech to a large audience in Lebanon by saying:

"Go forth from this room and show that New Hampshire says that it's time for Lyndon Johnson to go back to Texas and that as New Hampshire goes, so goes the nation."

The audience exploded with applause.

Earlier, Nixon referred indirectly to Romney's withdrawal by saying, "Your votes still matter." He told the crowd,

"The voters of the nation will be looking to New Hampshire, and the size of the vote on the Republican side will be measured against the size of the vote on the Democratic side."

Nixon told a reporter after the speech, "To a certain extent, considering the registration, the New Hampshire primary can be considered an approval or disapproval of the Johnson administration."

Official 1966 New Hampshire registration figures showed 145,694 Republicans; 122,422 independents, and 87,490 Democrats.

The former vice president has said several times that he believes a "new coalition" is forming across the United States in which Democrats and Independents are joining Republicans.

Nixon returned to the theme of a Nixon-Johnson contest in an interview with a radio station in nearby Hanover, the site of Dartmouth College. He reminded the station's listeners that he carried New Hampshire in 1960 and that Johnson won the state in 1964. Then he said:

"In 1968, it will be very interesting to see whether Nixon or Johnson gets the bigger vote, Johnson running against Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who will not, I think, make too significant a showing. And my running against Gov. (Nelson) Rockefeller, assuming his write-in does materialize."

A group of Rockefeller's supporters have banded together to get the New York governor a write-in vote in the March 12 primary in New Hampshire. Nixon has estimated that it may amount to 20 to 25 per cent of the total GOP vote in the presidential preference side of the ballot.

Nixon said he is not "issuing a challenge" to Rockefeller to oppose him in the six presidential primaries which he already has entered. But all the indications are that he would prefer to have an opponent in these contests. His objective is to prove that he can win in November, to destroy the "loser image" stemming from his defeats for the presidency in 1960 and his failure to win the California gubernatorial election in 1962.

The House Government Operations Committee cut $1,000 from the Senate-passed bill which would have boosted legislative salaries to $13,500 a year. Senators and representatives now earn $8,000. The committee made a few other changes and one would include a provision allowing the legislature to call itself into annual session by statute instead of a constitutional change which would require voter approval.

The Senate completed enactment of a House bill boosting pensions of members of the three major state retirement systems by about 8 per cent.

Senators passed 32-0 and returned to the lower chamber a major bill toughening anti-riot laws and enacting several new ones.

The House added its approval to a Senate measure which spells out the right of state university trustees to maintain law and order on campuses. (Continued on Page 2)

Romania Walks Out of Red Party Meet; Major Split

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — A new rebellion has developed in the Soviet bloc, with Romania accusing the Kremlin of Stalinist tactics and walking out of the meeting of 66 Communist parties being held in Budapest.

A communiqué issued today after an all-night huddle of conference officials expressed regret over the Romanian action.

The Romanian delegation walked out Thursday night after failing to win acceptance for two demands: repudiation of a Syrian attack on Romania's position on the Arab-Israeli question, and a promise that there would be no more attacks on Red China or any other Communist party during the remainder of the session.

There was speculation that the split might prove as important as the break between Russia and Yugoslavia in 1948, when Tito rebelled against Stalin's dictatorial rule. Nikita Khrushchev made peace with Tito, but an even more serious split in the Communist world developed with the break between Peking and Moscow.

Romania has sought to steer a neutral course in the conflict between the Soviet Union and Red China. Since Nicolae Ceausescu became Romanian Communist party secretary-general in 1965, Bucharest has also challenged the Kremlin's domination of the Soviet bloc and asserted Romanian independence from Soviet economic, military and political control.

The Coast Guard in New Orleans said 31 aircraft and three cutters would concentrate the rest of today's search in the Matagorda Bay area.

KHIE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — More than 500 North Vietnamese soldiers attacked the Khe Sanh combat base through the fog before dawn today. They got to the barbed wire ring around the base before they were driven back with at least 70 of their men killed.

The Red infantrymen charged behind three sapper platoons in the attack on the base's eastern perimeter, which is held by a battalion of 500 crack South Vietnamese Rangers.

A flight of the U.S. Air Force's huge B52 bombers, flying in direct support of ground troops for the first time in the war, dropped tons of explosives only 750 yards in front of the Rangers' lines.

The besieged U. S. Marine base in the northwest corner of South Vietnam was on a Red alert—meaning an attack was believed imminent—when the enemy soldiers came lunging through the darkness and mist.

Some of the Communist sappers succeeded in placing Bangalore torpedoes under the coils of barbed wire that circle the two-square-mile base, but they were killed before they could trigger the charges.

Rome Police Fight Riot By Students

ROME (AP) — Central Rome was paralyzed today by rioting university students who clashed with thousands of helmeted police swinging clubs and firing tear gas.

Hundreds of persons were injured, including at least 60 police. More than 100 rioters were taken into custody.

Downtown bus and taxi service halted. Shopkeepers shuttered their stores. Passers-by and lower grade school children fled to shelter in terror as the disorders spread.

Students screaming, "Revolution! Revolution!" bombarded police with paving stones ripped up from the streets. They overturned and set fire to police cars and buses. Ambulances with sirens screaming raced through the streets.

It was the most violent clash in the city since students began occupying university buildings three weeks ago in a campaign for more say in school administration and more modern teaching methods.

A parade of 3,600 students formed in Piazza di Spagna and marched to the Schools of Architecture where they fought with police guarding the building.

Turn Down Bid by Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — The House of Representatives today overwhelmingly rejected a bid by President Nguyen Van Thieu for special powers in the face of the Communist military offensive.

Members voted 85-10 to deny the president's request Feb. 9 for the power to promulgate decrees on economic and financial affairs for one year. Eight representatives abstained.

The vote by the 135-member House, 103 of whom were present, does not affect the state of martial law proclaimed by Thieu after the Communists launched their attacks against the cities Jan. 30.

Governors Push Rocky as Nixon Changes Emphasis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Republican governors have advised their colleagues they better start pushing a draft-Rockefeller bandwagon now or it may never get rolling.

Govs. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland and Tom McCall of Oregon, who long have urged Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to enter the GOP presidential race, expressed certainty Thursday the New Yorker will not lend himself to any last-ditch attempt by party moderates to stop former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Agnew and McCall made clear they are interpreting Rockefeller's position as demanding substantial support from party moderates—including most of the 26 GOP governnors—before he'll consider running.

The advice by the two Rockefeller backers was indirectly echoed by Nixon, left virtually alone in the GOP race by the abrupt withdrawal of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

Nixon said in New Hampshire that Rockefeller will have to enter some state presidential primaries if he wants the nomination.

"No one is going to be drafted for this nomination," said Nixon. "No one is going to back into it."

Whether the 21 GOP state executives attending the National Governors Conference in Washington would find time to caucus among themselves remained questionable.

McCall said he hoped to circulate a round-robin to the governors by mail and get 15 or 16 of them to sign, urging Rockefeller to make himself available as a candidate before the March 19 close of filing in Oregon's May 28 primary.

Nixon closed a speech to a large audience in Lebanon by saying:

"Go forth from this room and show that New Hampshire says that it's time for Lyndon Johnson to go back to Texas and that as New Hampshire goes, so goes the nation."

The audience exploded with applause. Earlier, Nixon referred indirectly to Romney's withdrawal by saying, "Your votes still matter." He told the crowd,

"The voters of the nation will be looking to New Hampshire, and the size of the vote on the Republican side will be measured against the size of the vote on the Democratic side."

Nixon told a reporter after the speech, "To a certain extent, considering the registration, the New Hampshire primary can be considered an approval or disapproval of the Johnson administration."

Official 1966 New Hampshire registration figures showed 145,694 Republicans; 122,422 Independents, and 87,490 Democrats.

The former vice president has said several times that he believes a "new coalition" is forming across the United States in which Democrats and Independents are joining Republicans.

Nixon returned to the theme of a Nixon-Johnson contest in an interview with a radio station in nearby Hanover, the site of Dartmouth College. He reminded the station's listeners that he carried New Hampshire in 1960 and that Johnson won the state in 1964. Then he said:

"In 1968, it will be very interesting to see whether Nixon or Johnson gets the bigger vote, Johnson running against Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who will not, I think, make too significant a showing. And my running against Gov. (Nelson) Rockefeller, assuming his write-in does materialize."

A group of Rockefeller's supporters have banded together to get the New York governor a write-in vote in the March 12 primary in New Hampshire. Nixon has estimated that it may amount to 20 to 25 per cent of the total GOP vote in the presidential preference side of the ballot.

Nixon said he is not "issuing a challenge" to Rockefeller to oppose him in the six presidential primaries which he already has entered. But all the indications are that he would prefer to have an opponent in these contests.

His objective is to prove that he can win in November, to destroy the "loser image" stemming from his defeats for the presidency in 1960 and his failure to win the California gubernatorial election in 1962.

Board Concludes Hearing On Cincinnati Jet Crash

CINCINNATI (AP)—A federal board concluded its hearing in to a recent jet passenger plane crash after reviewing Thursday a transcript of a cockpit voice recorder of the aircraft.

The National Transportation Safety Board said it would consider the transcript and testimony from several persons and issue a ruling in the crash in about six months.

Voice recordings between the Trans World Airlines jet and the Greater Cincinnati Airport indicated the control tower was in contact with the plane for about 8½ minutes before it crashed.

The Convair 440 plowed through an apple orchard more than a mile short of a runway and burned last Nov. 20, claiming 70 lives.

The recording showed the plane carrying 82 persons was advised the airport glide path was not functioning, that a middle marker was not operating and there were no high intensity approach lights.

Radio messages take from the cockpit recorder, found intact in the wreckage, revealed Capt. Charles L. Cochran, pilot of the TWA Jet, checked his altimeter and this conversation ensued:

Local control—TWA 128 clear to land runway 18. . .

Intercom to captain— "Okay and we gotta go down to, uh 400 (feet above the ground). That would be, uh 1,290 (above sea level)."

Intercom—(second voice)—"Set, cross checked on 30.67 (barometric pressure)."

Flight engineer—"Yaw damper check."

Cockpit—"Okay." (very faint) Pilot—"What's that—say, what you say, twelve ninety?" Copilot—"Ten ninety." Pilot—"Come on, you. . ."

Sound of impact.

Senators drafted and adopted a resolution requiring the legislature to adjourn after today until March 8 for a "skeleton" session to sign bills. The full membership will return March 22 to act on the pay raise measure and any other matters that may be carried over, leaders said, adding it was their intention to call for sine die adjournment the same day.

The conference committee on the bond issue was considering several changes, it was learned. One would restore $4 million for airport development and an undetermined amount for historical facilities which were down for $9 million in the original proposal.

The pension bill provides an increase of about 8 per cent for members of the State Teachers Retirement (STRS). School Employees (SERS) and Public Employees (PERS) systems who retire after July 1. The systems have about 405,000 active members.

The increases will cost an estimated $26.6 million a year, to be borne equally by employers and their employees.

An earlier measure provided increases ranging from 2 to 24 per cent for more than 64,000 members of the three systems already retired or who will retire before next July 1.

Senators added their approval to a House bill changing the effective date for a new statewide meat inspection bill from next July to July 1, 1969. Sponsors said the delay was necessitated because the original bill appropriated no money to operate the program.

In other action, the Senate approved House bills to: — Authorize judges and stewards of race tracks to impose sentences and fines for violation of state regulations.

— Establish a uniform system for renewal of licenses by various state departments similar to the system used for motor vehicle registration.

— Convey land in Chillicothe owned by Ohio University to the city for a fire station.

— Exempt county purchases from a competitive bidding requirement when there is only one supplier.

— Permit vocational school districts to place multipurpose tax levies on election ballots.

The house gave it approval to Senate bills to:

— Remove a 325-volt power limit for underground coal mine machinery to allow use of new types of equipment.

— Eliminate a requirement of notice to owners or unclaimed funds of less than $10 under Ohio's escheat laws before making those funds available for use by the state.

— Provide sales tax exemption to merchandise manufactured for sale in another state and picked up for delivery in the purchaser's vehicle.

— Authorize the auction of land in Paulding County.

— Permit sale by auction for an abandoned National Guard armory at Marion.

— Allow uniform treatment of earned income by all welfare recipients.

Stock Market Still Down

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market resumed its decline early this afternoon in moderately active trading.

The market made an early show of firmness but it didn't last long.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon held a gain of .40 at 840.90 but losses outnumbered gains in the over-all list by a wide margin.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon also showed a gain, rising .2 at 305.8 with industrials up .8, rails off .2 and utilities up .2.

Selective strength in blue chips bolstered the popular averages.

Prices were generally lower on the American Stock Exchange.

from Khe Sah. The crew and passengers escaped, but some were injured. As firemen rushed out to extinguish the flames, Communist gunners bracketed the wreckage with two mortar rounds, wounding several of the firefighters.

The early morning attack was the heaviest ground assault launched so far against the 5,000 U.S. Marines and 500 Rangers holding the Khe Sanh base. An estimated 40,000 Communist troops are believed massed across the northern frontier for an invasion of South Vietnam's two northernmost provinces, with the Khe Sah base their first objective.

U.S. and South Vietnamese naval forces meanwhile reported their biggest single bag of the war—the destruction of three 100-ton Communist trawlers loaded with Soviet AK47 assault rifles and ammunition along the coast. Another of the 100-foot vessels fled out to sea and escaped.

The U.S. Command said one of the trawlers was blown up by its crew to escape capture and the other two were shot up in flames by U.S. Navy and Coast Guard boats, infantrymen firing from the beach and planes attacking overhead.

One battle on the beach was still under way this afternoon, with the Communists firing from the beach at allied forces attempting to approach one of the wrecks that had been shot up and grounded near Nha Trang.

A U.S. spokesman said the trawlers were assumed to be South Vietnamese.

Romney Says He Won't Endorse Rocky for Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney said today he is not endorsing New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller or anyone else for the Republican presidential nomination at this time.

Romney, who quit the race for nomination Wednesday, said he hopes to work with Republican governors and others in the party to get behind a candidate all "an support."

Romney said he would join in supporting whatever candidate the governors and others agree upon. He said the others would include Republicans in Congress and party leaders across the country.

"I have not endorsed any individual candidate," the Michigan governor told a news conference. And Romney said he would not attempt to deliver his admittedly sparse support in the New Hampshire presidential primary campaign to Rockefeller.

"I will not urge my supporters in New Hampshire to support any individual candidate in New Hampshire," he said. "I think they ought to make their own decisions."

Romney's news conference was to have been held in Manchester, N.H., but a snowstorm kept the governor from flying there. So he held it here at the Washington Hilton hotel's Tennis and Swim Club.

Some of the questions he handled at the conference were telephoned in by newsmen from Manchester.

Romney said his decision to withdraw from the race because he never won rank and file support will be "well rewarded" if it contributes to Republican unity and the election of a GOP president next November.

Romney stressed that he was talking not only of Republican governors, but of other GOP leaders as well, when he pledged to support a consensus candidate for the nomination.

In withdrawing Wednesday, Romney had put all the emphasis on the governors. "I am prepared to give wholehearted support to the candidate whom they will support," he said then.

Savings Bonds Suggested Option For Tax Returns

Kenneth F. Fosnaugh, Pickaway County savings bonds chairman, reminded taxpayers Thursday that the Treasury Department will once again offer them the opportunity of taking income tax refunds in United States Savings Bonds.

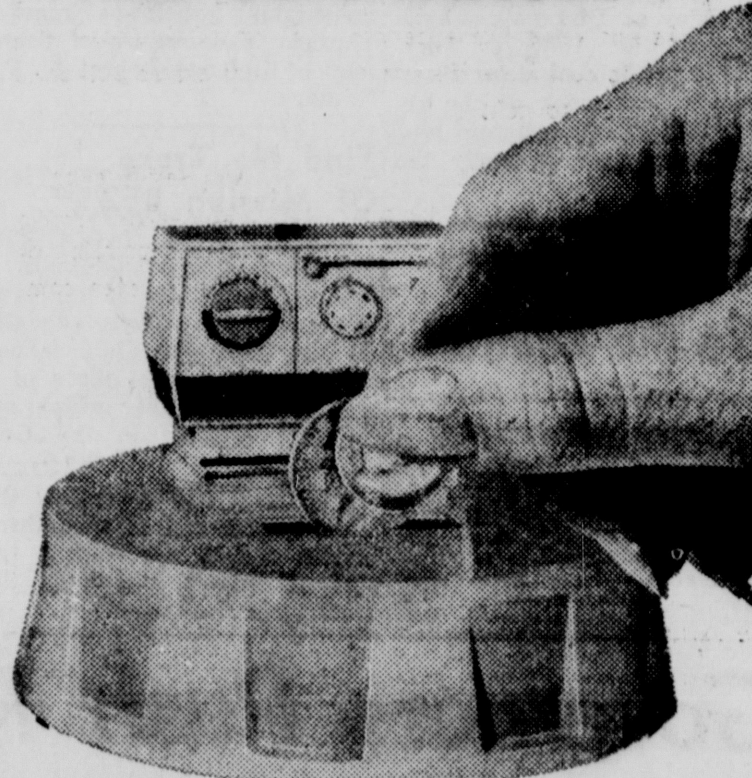

The savings option, introduced in 1963, is in addition to the two standard options of taking tax refunds in cash or applying them to next year's tax.

"When a taxpayer elects to take his refund in Series E Bonds," the Chairman said, "his money goes to work immediately on two jobs. It begins to build his financial security. At the same time, it contributes to our country's economic strength. Those who elect the U. S. Savings Bonds option join millions of Americans who are investing in their country's future in this way."

Manslaughter Case Dismissed

Two traffic charges lodged against Myles Stanfield Beaman, 27, of Graham, N. C., stemming from a double-fatal accident Dec. 23, 1967, have been dismissed.

The charges of failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead and of traffic manslaughter were dismissed for lack of prosecution by Judge Sterling Lamb in Circleville Municipal Court Thursday afternoon.

Killed in the accident were Danny Seymour, 18, Kingston, and James E. Roy, 20, Circleville. The car they were driving pulled from the parking lot at Noel’s King Boy South with its lights turned out, witnesses told Sheriff Dwight Radcliff.

Beaman’s car crashed into the rear of the auto carrying the two boys.

BEAMAN appeared in Municipal Court Thursday afternoon. The judge granted defense attorney Emmett Crist’s motion for dismissal when Sheriff Dwight Radcliff did not appear in court.

The sheriff said today he agreed earlier that the charges would be dismissed and that he saw no reason to attend the hearing.

Trio Charged In Auto Theft

Gritton has also been cited for driving without a license.

The investigation has been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation because the car was transported across a state line, Radcliff said.

But Stoozell wasn’t happy with that, he returned from Baltimore Thursday to enter a plea of not guilty to the charge. . . After testimony by three patrolmen and approximately two hours of debate the driver was found guilty as charged by Judge Sterling Lamb.

PICKAWAY County Commissioners Wayne Hines, Lloyd Melvin and Charles Morris accompanied Asa Elsea to London Thursday night to discuss the Madison County airport facilities. . .

The airport authority and Madison commissioners explained their procedures in constructing the landing strip and problems they had encountered.

Hines, chairman of the county board of commissioners, said today that the sons had not changed their stand on a Pickaway County strip . . . “We will not spend one dime of county money on a landing strip. If persons interested in a landing strip can raise the necessary money and find a satisfactory location, we will build one,” Hines said. . . Elsea is the state Jaycee airport committee chairman.

“If March comes in like a lion, it will go out like a lamb,” or so the old folks say . . . We couldn’t find anyone to label today’s weather “lamb-like”. . . In fact at midnight, according to one observer, “it was snowing and blowing.” So, according to the old adage, spring like weather should be on its way. . .

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market resumed its decline early this afternoon in moderately active trading.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon also showed a gain, rising .2 at 305.8 with industrials up .8, rails off .2 and utilities up .2.

Selective strength in blue chips bolstered the popular averages.

Prices were generally lower on the American Stock Exchange.

from Khe Sah. The crew and passengers escaped, but some were injured. As firemen rushed out to extinguish the flames, Communist gunners bracketed the wreckage with two mortar rounds, wounding several of the firefighters.

The early morning attack was the heaviest ground assault launched so far against the 5,000 U.S. Marines and 500 Rangers holding the Khe Sanh base. An estimated 40,000 Communist troops are believed massed across the northern frontier for an invasion of South Vietnam’s two northernmost provinces, with the Khe Sah base their first objective.

U.S. and South Vietnamese naval forces meanwhile reported their biggest single bag of the war—the destruction of three 100-ton Communist trawlers loaded with Soviet AK47 assault rifles and ammunition along the coast. Another of the 100-foot vessels fled out to sea and escaped.

The U.S. Command said one of the trawlers was blown up by its crew to escape capture and the other two were shot up in flames by U.S. Navy and Coast Guard boats, infantrymen firing from the beach and planes attacking overhead.

One battle on the beach was still under way this afternoon, with the Communists firing from the beach at allied forces attempting to approach one of the wrecks that had been shot up and grounded near Nha Trang.

A U.S. spokesman said the trawlers were assumed to be South Vietnamese.

Romney Says He Won’t Endorse Rocky for Now

WASHINGTON (AP)—Michigan Gov. George Romney said today he is not endorsing New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller or anyone else for the Republican presidential nomination at this time.

Romney, who quit the race for nomination Wednesday, said he hopes to work with Republican governors and others in the party to get behind a candidate all can support.

Romney said he would join in supporting whatever candidate the governors and others agree upon. He said the others would include Republicans in Congress and party leaders across the country.

“I have not endorsed any individual candidate,” the Michigan governor told a news conference. And Romney said he would not attempt to deliver his admittedly sparse support in the New Hampshire presidential primary campaign to Rockefeller.

“I will not urge my supporters in New Hampshire to support any individual candidate in New Hampshire,” he said. “I think they ought to make their own decisions.”

Romney’s news conference was to have been held in Manchester, N.H., but a snowstorm kept the governor from flying there. So he held it here at the Washington Hilton hotel’s Tennis and Swim Club.

Some of the questions he handled at the conference were telephoned in by newsmen from Manchester.

Romney said his decision to withdraw from the race because he never won rank and file support will be “well rewarded” if it contributes to Republican unity and the election of a GOP president next November.

Romney stressed that he was talking not only of Republican governors, but of other GOP leaders as well, when he pledged to support a consensus candidate for the nomination.

In withdrawing Wednesday, Romney had put all the emphasis on the governors. “I am prepared to give wholehearted support to the candidate whom they will support,” he said then.

Savings Bonds Suggested Option For Tax Returns

Kenneth F. Fosnaugh, Pickaway County savings bonds chairman, reminded taxpayers Thursday that the Treasury Department will once again offer them the opportunity of taking income tax refunds in United States Savings Bonds.

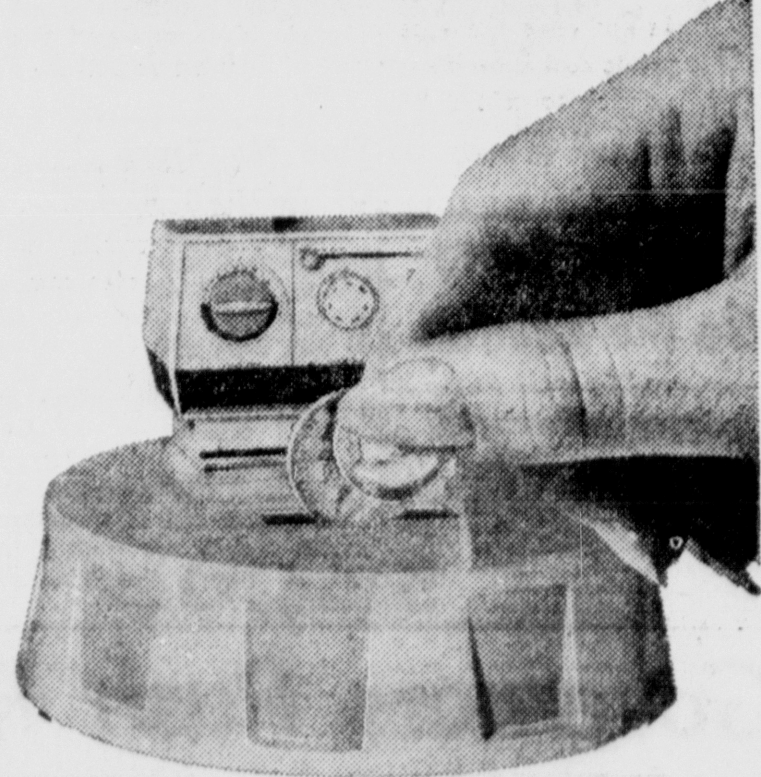

The savings option, introduced in 1963, is in addition to the two standard options of taking tax refunds in cash or applying them to next year’s tax.

“When a taxpayer elects to take his refund in Series E Bonds,” the Chairman said, “his money goes to work immediately on two jobs. It begins to build his financial security. At the same time, it contributes to our country’s economic strength. Those who elect the U. S. Savings Bonds option join millions of Americans who are investing in their country’s future in this way.”

County Auditor Hospitalized

According to Boyle

By DEE WEDEMEYER (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Dear Pavement Plato:

So far I am a Leap Year loser. I have a target—Melvin, the bachelor of my choice.

I feel he loves me. This week he deliberately let me beat him twice in a row at Indian hand wrestling, and last summer when our crowd went on picnics I was the only girl he'd let help him look for four-leaf clovers.

But when I speak of marriage, Melvin just gets a faraway look and pretends he doesn't know what I am talking about. What can I do to win him as a husband?

Rosemary for Remembrance Dear Rosemary:

To begin with, don't lose your cool. There are a lot of girls in your plight, each of whom believes that just because this is Leap Year she'll be able to sweep her own particular Melvin off his feet.

A majority of them will probably miss their goal because of one thing—overeagerness.

Since they realize that there is a 366-day open season on them this year, bachelors—like any other hunted creatures—are doubly shy. Before you can catch Melvin you first must court him.

How should a modern girl go about courting a modern bachelor? The same way that porcupines court—cautiously. Don't pounce on him as if he were a mouse. Creep up on him as if he were a mouse.

Worm your way into Melvin's life gradually until he will finally decide himself that you are indispensable to his happiness.

As most bachelors today are looking for security above everything else, do everything in your power to bolster Melvin's self-confidence.

If you go bowling or play pool together, let him win two times out of three, even though you have to play left-handed to do so.

Don't take him to your apartment to show him how well you can cook. Every bachelor prides himself on his culinary skill. Let him take you to his apartment and rustle up a meal. No matter how it tastes, praise every bit of his bite. No man wants to spend his life with a woman who doesn't appreciate his cooking.

Assist him in every possible way. Sew on a button for him now and then. Help him write letters to his congressman or his draft board.

When you find Melvin turns to you in every emergency, it is time to wind up the campaign. Do it in style. Have him over to your apartment and again let him cook the meal. Ply him afterward with champagne, cuddle next to him on the love seat and tell him you're doing so well on the job that you soon expect to be named the first lady vice president in the history of your firm.

Then open your bank book, let him have a good long look at it and say:

"Melvin, dear, why don't you help me spend this forever and ever and ever?"

One last tip: When you leave for Niagara Falls on your honeymoon, you pay for the tickets.

The World Today

By BOB HORTON, AP Military Writer (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dream of a college education for all young Americans, so dear to the hearts of parents and politicians, is being called into serious question on Capitol Hill.

The charge has been made in Congress that the four of every five American youths who now fail to complete college are victims of a national obsession with the goal of a college education for everyone.

Even in the academic world itself it has been argued that educators have oversold the idea of a college education as the key to success.

A better goal for a national education policy, said these critics, is some sort of vocational education for all—some preparation for choosing, getting and holding a decent job. A college education may be a good way for some to get such preparation, they say but it's not the only way.

Yet in a nation where only one youth in five graduates from college, the federal government contributes nearly three times as much money to support higher education than vocational education. And the total has remained fairly level for three years in vocational education while rising rapidly for higher education.

education has been prepared by a special advisory council appointed by John W. Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare.

It suggests occupational preparation begin in elementary school with "a realistic picture of the world of work." In junior high school, it says, all students study the economic and industrial system to become acquainted with the range of job choices available.

Specific job training should be given in high school to all students not planning to go to college. And two years of post-secondary school training in advanced skills should be offered free as part of the educational system.

The council recommends that meanwhile, existing programs should be greatly expanded and federal expenditures increased from the present $250 million a year to $1.5 billion.

The administration has accepted some of these proposed remedies but its response to the suggested increase in spending was to ask for another $15 million to fund pilot programs in the states.

Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., presiding over current hearings on the administration request, bluntly told the witnesses it was not enough. "This is just a start," he said. "The goal must be legislation which provides an education for meaningful work and full employability."

So many nations have already withdrawn their athletes from the 1968 Olympics in Mexico — because of the re-statement of South Africa — there could be a new event added to the summer games—the run toward the exit.

That Washington fashion show for governors' wives was quite a success. This time it was a case of skirts being the issue — and not the issue being skirted.

Mrs. Lyndon Johnson was hostess for the style show. Still trying to make America even more beautiful.

A Dayton, Ohio, computer will be utilized in an attempt to forecast the appliance buying habits of the American housewife. Engineers report trouble programming the gadget for feminine intuition. We'll buy that!

If that Spanish union-for-housewives idea spread it just might put dear old ex-Marine Dad back on K.P. duty!

The annual dental bill for us Americans is now estimated to be in excess of $1,600,000,000 a year. Ouch!

Today's average race horse, we read, is 15 hands high, though thoroughbreds of 200 years ago averaged only 14 hands high. Maybe today's nags can't run any faster than their ancestors did but they certainly eat better!

20 YEARS AGO
MARCH, 1948

A delegation from the Ted Lewis city park commission appeared before city council requesting money for a fulltime caretaker's salary and a reappropriation sum.

18-year old Jim Picklesimer from Williamsport's Deercreek High School was voted the "most outstanding" athlete of Pickaway County's schools. He was awarded the Bob Bowsher Memorial Trophy.

An additional $3,500 was approved by Pickaway County Commissioners to continue repair work at the Children's Home. In January $4,622.90 was appropriated for work on the buildings. The additional appropriation was spent for replacing and repairing kitchen stoves, drilling a new well and more painting.

Will A. Francis, Kingston, was one of five state game protectors relieved of their posts by the State Conservation Division because of economy and efficiency reasons. Francis was a veteran with 32 years service with the conservation division.

A Pickaway County girl's volleyball tournament was scheduled at the Jackson Twp. High School with 10 of the 11 area schools to participate.

City councilman-at-large Robert Adkins urged passing of a city zoning ordinance by townspeople and fraternal groups stating "Circleville should have had one long ago."

Some 31 neighbors and grangers of Saltcreek Valley swarmed over C. D. Rector's cornfield and shucked over 175 shocks of corn for the prominent Valley farmer who had been ill for some time at his home.

Howard B. Hinton, native of Pickaway County, stepped down from his job as Columbus chief of police after only nine days service because public speeches and a kindred extra-curricular activities were "out of my line."

Approximately $5,000 was collected during Circleville's annual Red Cross drive, but the total was $4,000 short of the goal. The bank was being set up to replenish dwindling supplies in hospitals and would be given free to those in need.

Five years ago — Mrs. Cecil Flaffer Hudson of Houston, Tex., won a record divorce settlement — $6.5 million.

One year ago — The Pentagon said Communist casualties in Vietnam had increased 40 to 50 per cent in three months because of stepped-up U.S. military action.

NEW YORK (AP) — Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler once said that a periodic reconsideration of the federal debt limit by Congress provides the nation with:

"... a review of the entire fiscal policy of the government for the year in question and the future."

In other words, the secretary seemed to agree with those who believe Congress should retain the right to raise or lower the limit, and to oppose a formidable group that suggests there be no limit.

This stand the secretary could come to regret this year, for any review of the administration's fiscal policy very likely will provide as big a platform for critics as the current debate over tax policies.

More important, the debt limit might very well be reached by the administration just before the November elections.

Nothing could better illustrate the complete encirclement of administration strategy, its lack of options, than the words of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., who as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is in a position to kick the trap door and permit the noose to become a knot.

If taxes are not increased, said Mills, "sometime just prior to the elections the secretary of the Treasury is going to be without funds and without authority to issue additional bonds." It can be assumed his tone was grave.

In years past administrations have been put in embarrassing situations by having to trudge up Capitol Hill to ask Congress for the right to go deeper into debt. In the past 50 years, in fact, the ceiling has been raised dozens of times.

On several occasions the administration in power has come face to face with the limit, as it did last year and so had to resort to bookkeeping tricks. On occasions government bills have been left unpaid because there was no cash on hand.

More often, though, the administration got its increase in the debt limit without much argument, despite the anguish of conservatives who felt Congress was reneging on its constitutional obligation to check excesses of the executive branch.

Seldom, however, has any administration been faced with bigger financing problems and less to say about them. With Mills in such a position of power, few if any options remain for Fowler and President Johnson.

As Mills sees it, the administration should cut some domestic spending, and unless it does so, won't get its tax surcharge proposal elevated. Yet the administration is committed to an expensive domestic program requiring heavy spending.

Furthermore if the tax proposal isn't passed, the administration may reach the debt limit and so face a debate about its policies at election time, which is about equivalent to the guests raising questions about the groom's character just before the wedding.

WASHINGTON REPORT

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative to Congress
6th District, Ohio

Since the U. S. foreign aid program was inaugurated in 1948, we have made available in direct assistance nearly 130 billion dollars to 124 countries.

Has this assistance helped these struggling nations?

In the more sophisticated countries it has helped some but in others it has only served to strengthen the hand and pocketbook of the politicians in control of the local governments.

Our aid program is one of the primary causes of our unfavorable balance of payments problem and the demands on our gold supplies. As a result, I believe, it's high time we took a serious look at our entire foreign aid program—particularly in the light of recent scandals disclosed by the Inspector General of the Foreign Assistance programs — scandals involving waste, graft and just plain inefficiency, which have cost the taxpayers billions of dollars.

For instance:

In Algeria, an inspection team discovered "sizeable amounts of food—including 2,000 cases of cooking oil and 1,000 sacks of dry milk — which had never been distributed."

In Argentina, inspectors walking through warehouses in the Buenos Aires port area found 18 large crates of tool kits which, although consigned to Paraguay under the military sales program, had been sitting on the docks in Buenos Aires for more than nine years!

In Rio de Janeiro, inspectors found U. S. - financed goods being sold at auction.

In the Dominican Republic, AID money was used to import — and I quote from the report — "champagne glasses, luxury food and other non-essentials." End of quote.

In Nationalist China, it was found that many of the spare parts for Army vehicles that we sent them were not needed at all.

The list is practically endless. In country after country, we have paid out American dollars for local currency—thereby increasing the balance of payments drain — when we had available at other sources more local currency than we could use.

In India, for example, there was, at our Embassy, an excess of U. S. - owned rupies, but CARE, the welfare agency, was still buying rupies through normal banking channels. It was the same thing in Indonesia, in Morocco, in Nigeria, in the Philippines.

In closing, let me quote the Democratic chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: "Revelations of AID deficiencies during the past few weeks have had a most demoralizing effect... upon the confidence of the American people."

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I recently had a very distressing experience. I have a history of a stomach ulcer and have been treated for it for many years. A recent X-ray examination showed that the ulcer is becoming deeper and the opinion was that an operation was necessary.

Like everyone I was terrified and, under pressure by my family, wanted to get another opinion and consultation.

The X-rays, taken at the doctor's office, would not be released even though I had paid for them. Because the doctors could not get together on who should call whom I had to undergo a complete X-ray series all over again. Is this fair to the patient?

MR. R. R., Maryland
Dear Mr. R.: You and your ulcer have been caught in a bind of poor communications between your doctors and between you and them. I am not quite sure that you, without meaning to be, are partially responsible for the confusion and the poor position you now are in. This is not meant as chastisement but rather to allow me to show how you were placed in this position and how my readers may avoid a similar situation.

The fact that you paid for the X-rays does not technically mean that you own them. This problem has come up for legal inspection many times and the decision varies in different states. Actually, the X-rays are part of the chart of a patient but they should always be released to reliable people for study and returned to the doctor who made them.

In my own practice I frequently give patients the plates. I have found that patients hold on to their X-rays and treat them carefully.

I believe it is an excellent record for them to have should they move away or ever consult another doctor. The report I find is quite sufficient for my own records.

Never before have I ever

To which I would add, "No wonder." And I intend to do all I can to cinch up on foreign aid operations to make them accomplish what they were intended to accomplish.

According to Boyle

By DEE WEDEMEYER (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — Dear Pavement Plato:

So far I am a Leap Year loser. I have a target—Melvin, the bachelor of my choice.

I feel he loves me. This week he deliberately let me beat him twice in a row at Indian hand wrestling, and last summer when our crowd went on picnics I was the only girl he'd let help him look for four-leaf clovers.

But when I speak of marriage, Melvin just gets a faraway look and pretends he doesn't know what I am talking about. What can I do to win him as a husband?

Rosemary for Remembrance

Dear Rosemary:

To begin with, don't lose your cool. There are a lot of girls in your plight, each of whom believes that just because this is Leap Year she'll be able to sweep her own particular Melvin off his feet.

A majority of them will probably miss their goal because of one thing—overeagerness.

Since they realize that there is a 366-day open season on them

this year, bachelors—like any other hunted creatures—are doubly shy. Before you can catch Melvin you first must court him.

How should a modern girl go about courting a modern bachelor? The same way that porcupines court—cautiously. Don't pounce on him as if he were a mouse. Creep up on him as if he were a mouse.

Worm your way into Melvin's life gradually until he will finally decide himself that you are indispensable to his happiness.

As most bachelors today are looking for security above everything else, do everything in your power to bolster Melvin's self-confidence.

If you go bowling or play pool together, let him win two times out of three, even though you have to play left-handed to do so.

Don't take him to your apartment to show him how well you can cook. Every bachelor prides himself on his culinary skill. Let him take you to his apartment and rustle up a meal. No matter how it tastes, praise every bite. No man wants to spend his life with a woman who doesn't appreciate his cooking.

Assist him in every possible way. Sew on a button for him now and then. Help him write letters to his congressman or his draft board.

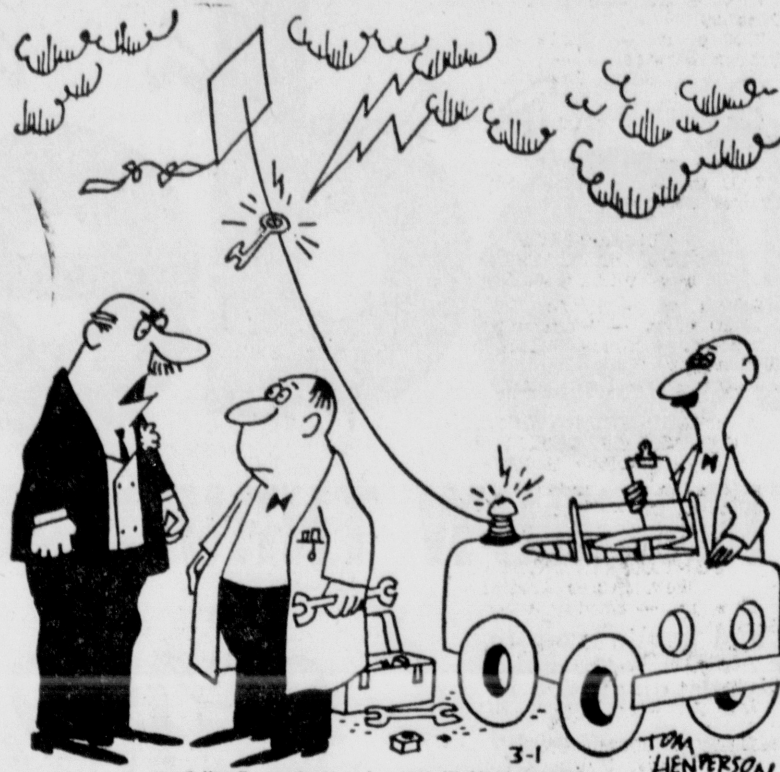

When you find Melvin turns to you in every emergency, it is time to wind up the campaign. Do it in style. Have him over to your apartment and again let him cook the meal. Ply him afterward with champagne, cuddle next to him on the love seat and tell him you're doing so well on the job that you soon expect to be named the first lady vice president in the history of your firm.

Then open your bank book, let him have a good long look at it and say:

"Melvin, dear, why don't you help me spend this forever and ever and ever?"

One last tip: When you leave for Niagara Falls on your honeymoon, you pay for the tickets.

This is not meant as chastisement but rather to allow me to show how you were placed in this position and how my readers may avoid a similar situation.

The fact that you paid for the X-rays does not technically mean that you own them. This problem has come up for legal inspection many times and the decision varies in different states. Actually, the X-rays are part of the chart of a patient but they should always be released to reliable people for study and returned to the doctor who made them.

In my own practice I frequently give patients the plates. I have found that patients hold on to their X-rays and treat them carefully.

I believe it is an excellent record for them to have should they move away or ever consult another doctor. The report I find is quite sufficient for my own records.

Never before have I ever known it to be necessary for a patient to undergo a complete X-ray series with all the expense and discomfort involved because doctors "could not get together." There must have been some other unusual factors in your case.

I hope that patients have learned, by reading my columns, that doctors actually welcome another opinion in a difficult case. The burden is thereby shared and the responsibility lessened, especially when a difficult surgical procedure is necessary.

Ask yourself if you had ever asked your own doctor about a consultation? Had you done so he undoubtedly would have arranged it and told the new doctor of his X-ray findings and clinical judgment.

Going behind your own doctor's back can be distressing to him. Patients forget that doctors are mere mortals and have just as many frailties as their patients.

Even though vanity plays no part in a doctor's relationship with his patients, all of us in practice enjoy the feeling of trust that is built up by us over a long period of time with our patients. I believe it is a violation of that trust not to discuss openly and frankly the desire for an extra opinion.

Hospitals will gladly send to doctors X-rays, reports and their records if they are requested with the signature of the patient affixed to it. The understanding is, however, that the doctor will return the X-rays for the permanent files of the hospital. This same relationship exists between doctor and doctor when the request is made.

Unfortunately, patients sometimes react in anger when their first demands for the X-rays are not met. When once this explosion, based on anxiety and concern about health, occurs it is followed by embarrassment and the destruction of the wonderful doctor-patient relationship that had existed.

No, I do not believe this is fair to the patient. May I ask is this fair to the doctor?

Overdependence on nose drops leads to many unpleasant nasal conditions.

The World Today

By BOB HORTON, AP Military Writer (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dream of a college education for all young Americans, so dear to the hearts of parents and politicians, is being called into serious question on Capitol Hill.

The charge has been made in Congress that the four of every five American youths who now fail to complete college are victims of a national obsession with the goal of a college education for everyone.

Even in the academic world itself it has been argued that educators have oversold the idea of a college education as the key to success.

A better goal for a national education policy, said these critics, is some sort of vocational education for all—some preparation for choosing, getting and holding a decent job. A college education may be a good way for some to get such preparation, they say but it's not the only way.

Yet in a nation where only one youth in five graduates from college, the federal government contributes nearly three times as much money to support higher education than vocational education. And the total has remained fairly level for three years in vocational education while rising rapidly for higher education.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., one of the strongest advocates of better vocational education, estimates 90 per cent of those who come into the job market without a college degree have never learned a marketable skill.

The bitter fruits of this policy, he says, are staggering rates of unemployment among young people and the $1 billion a year the government spends on work-training programs to rehabilitate them.

The framework for a national policy of universal vocational education has been prepared by a special advisory council appointed by John W. Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare.

It suggests occupational preparation begin in elementary school with "a realistic picture of the world of work." In junior high school, it says, all students study the economic and industrial system to become acquainted with the range of job choices available.

Specific job training should be given in high school to all students not planning to go to college. And two years of post-secondary school training in advanced skills should be offered free as part of the educational system.

The council recommends that meanwhile, existing programs should be greatly expanded and federal expenditures increased from the present $250 million a year to $1.5 billion.

The administration has accepted some of these proposed remedies but its response to the suggested increase in spending was to ask for another $15 million to fund pilot programs in the states.

Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., presiding over current hearings on the administration request, bluntly told the witnesses it was not enough. "This is just a start," he said. "The goal must be legislation which provides an education for meaningful work and full employability."

Gene Hackman

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A couple of summers ago, actor Gene Hackman was here for a television role when he received a message from his wife in New York: "Warren Beatty wants to talk to you about a movie."

Hackman promptly called his agent, who he says told him, "Forget about it—Beatty is always talking about producing a movie, but nothing ever comes of it."

Happily, Hackman persisted, and as a result he won the role of Buck Barrow in "Bonnie and Clyde." Now he is an Academy Award nominee for best supporting actor, and he has all the roles he can handle.

All this is a new and gratifying experience for the stocky ex-Marine whose acting career proceeded at a crawl for a dozen years. Now, at age 38, he is able to support his wife and three children in a style to which they were never accustomed.

You wonder why a man will remain in a profession that offers so little encouragement. Hackman himself wonders.

"There were times when I thought I should quit," he recalls, "but I had gone beyond the point where I could have gone into another line of work. I wasn't qualified for anything. If my wife hadn't supported us by working as a secretary, I don't know what I would have done."

Gene Hackman was an unlikely prospect for an actor. Born in Danville, Ill., he came from a family of newspapermen. But after five years in the Marines and a couple of years at the University of Illinois, he decided he wanted to act. He enrolled at Pasadena Playhouse, where one of his fellow students was Dustin Hoffman, another of this year's academy nominees.

Then came Hackman's lean years. His broad Irish face—he is really of German origin—made him ideal for playing cops, priests and ministers, but other roles were hard to find.

"I did the usual things that out of work actors do in New York," he said. "I worked in drugstores and sold furniture. I worked for a moving company and I sold aluminum wear from door to door. I got to be pretty good at selling pots and pans. In fact, I went out to Peoria, Ill., and had a whole crew working for me. I even won a prize that included a trip to Chicago. I might have stayed with it, but by the time I went back to Peoria, I had lost the spirit."

The event that proved a key to Hackman's prosperity came when he was assigned to a small role in "Lilith." He had only a five-minute scene with Warren Beatty, but Beatty was impressed. He wanted to cast Hackman as Clyde Barrow's brother in his production of "Bonnie and Clyde."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says indications are fewer people are using the mind-expanding drug LSD. The agency expresses hope it means warnings the drug is dangerous are being heeded.
An FDA official disputed Wednesday a congressman's claim earlier this week that nearly two million students use the hallucinogen.
John Finlator, head of the agency's Bureau of Drug Abuse Control, said the figures used by Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., were based on "four very superficial studies."
In House debate, Carter had projected statistics to show that up to 1.6 million high school students and 300,000 college students use LSD.
The FDA said all nine of its regional drug-abuse control field offices report a general decline in the amount of LSD cases in the last eight months.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Dear Pat . . .

I know it has been a long time since I've written. As you can imagine, I've been very busy getting settled here. Everyone has been wonderful, and what an experience it is teaching these first grade children! It's a real thrill to watch them as they learn to read. I've already met some wonderful people, both here at school and in church . . .

So she writes her letter, and although "it has been a long time . . ." these words will stretch across the miles and the fibres of this friendship will be as strong as ever.

If you were never to write a letter you would lose touch with people who mean a great deal to you. By the same token, if you never were to go to church, you would fail to keep the fabric of your faith woven tight and strong. True, you might still believe firmly in God, but the affirmation and continued growth of this faith requires worship in His presence and in His house.

Thinking about a friend isn't the same thing as writing a letter to him — wanting to be in that person's presence. Believing in God isn't the same as professing that belief by attending church regularly.

Fewer Use LSD Now, FDA Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says indications are fewer people are using the mind-expanding drug LSD. The agency expresses hope it means warnings the drug is dangerous are being heeded.

An FDA official disputed Wednesday a congressman's claim earlier this week that nearly two million students use the hallucinogen.

John Finlator, head of the agency's Bureau of Drug Abuse Control, said the figures used by Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., were based on "four very superficial studies."

In House debate, Carter had projected statistics to show that up to 1.6 million high school students and 300,000 college students use LSD.

The FDA said all nine of its regional drug-abuse control field offices report a general decline in the amount of LSD cases in the last eight months.

Dear Pat...

I know it has been a long time since I've written. As you can imagine, I've been very busy getting settled here. Everyone has been wonderful, and what an experience it is teaching these first grade children! It's a real thrill to watch them as they learn to read. I've already met some wonderful people, both here at school and in church...

So she writes her letter, and although "it has been a long time..." these words will stretch across the miles and the fibres of this friendship will be as strong as ever.

If you were never to write a letter you would lose touch with people who mean a great deal to you. By the same token, if you never were to go to church, you would fail to keep the fabric of your faith woven tight and strong. True, you might still believe firmly in God, but the affirmation and continued growth of this faith requires worship in His presence and in His house.

Thinking about a friend isn't the same thing as writing a letter to him — wanting to be in that person's presence. Believing in God isn't the same as professing that belief by attending church regularly.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Doctor from Ohio Caught In Big Vietnam Battle

By GEORGE McARTHUR Associated Press Writer

HUE, Vietnam (AP) — There wasn't anything in the dispensary to perform an amputation with, so a medic ran out and borrowed a hacksaw from the Seabees.

It was hardly the type of thing taught in medical school but Dr. Stephen Bernie from Dayton, Ohio, was getting used to the unusual.

He had been blown out of bed a few nights before by an exploding rocket. Later standing in front of his dispensary, he was sprayed by shrapnel from a mortar which exploded on the tile roof of the one-story building.

The easy, going 28-year-old Army captain, recently a student at Ohio State, had been plunged into the heart of Vietnam's nastiest battle.

"It was suddenly the accident ward at a big city hospital," Bernie said. "Until now we could always get serious cases to the regular hospital at Phu Bai. It's only seven miles away and the ambulance could get there in minutes. We never really dreamed of this."

His three-room dispensary, equipped mainly for GI colds and stomachaches, became the sole clearing station in the raging battle for Hue.

The Communists cut the road to Phu Bai and isolated the city by land. They raked the Perfume River with shellfire and made evacuation by sea hazardous and long. A cold misty rain settled over the city, making evacuation helicopters irregular and chancey.

In a small room with two stretchers placed on metal stands, Bernie and a small team of medics treated a tragic stream of wounded.

For almost a week, working through the nights by flashlight until an emergency generator was rigged, Bernie's small team ran the station alone. Then a helicopter dropped a small Navy medical team headed by Lt. James Bach, a lean, 29-year-old doctor from Lexington, Ky., whose enthusiasm matched Bernie's.

The two doctors and their Army medics and Navy corpsmen treated hundreds of American soldiers and Marines. Only two died later, and both were in hopeless condition when they were brought in.

Uncounted patients were Vietnamese civilians—the besieged city's own medical facilities just disappeared.

"We had to do major operations on some of them," Back said. "We knew that if we didn't do it, it wouldn't get done and they would die."

Arbitrator Gives New York Sanitationmen $425 Raise

NEW YORK (AP) — An arbitrator has given the city's 10,000 sanitationmen a pay increase of $425 a year in a 15-month contract, and Mayor John W. Lindsay and the head of the sanitationmen's union are in dispute over the actual value of the award.

The conflicting interpretations involve comparisons on the basis of 12 months or 15 months. Lindsay spoke of "an over-all average increase of $415 over the 15-month period of the contract."

John J. DeLury, president of the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association, said the award, according to union calculations, amounted to an increase on a annual basis of $429.90.

The arbitration award was announced late Thursday by the State Mediation Board. The city and the union agreed the decision would be binding.

The $425 in the award was the exact amount promised the sanitationmen by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller when he got them to end their strike on Feb. 10 and start to work overtime to clear away an estimated 100,000 tons of garbage and other refuse.

But the arbitration award was on a 15-month basis, whereas Rockefeller's figure—proposed by a mediation panel he appointed—was on a 12-month basis. Also, the arbitration award did not make the entire increase retroactive to July 1, 1967, as the panel had recommended.

Lindsay rejected Rockefeller's $425 formula, and called the figure a "little blackmail" by the union. The union accepted the figure.

During the strike, Lindsay asked Rockefeller to call out the National Guard. The governor refused.

The sanitationmen whose pay ranged from $6,424 a year to start to $7,956 after three years, originally demanded an increase of $600 a year.

White House Has Exhibit Of Fashions

By FRANCES LEWINE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — History's first White House fashion show had it all—fancy clothes, beautiful models and a gilded setting—and the President of the United States.

President Johnson popped in briefly to greet wives of the nation's governors, guests at Mrs. Johnson's fashion first, and to joke:

"With so many governors in town, I didn't want to leave the White House too long."

The governors' spouses oohed and aahed at the half-hour array of finery, but were noticeably cool to those miniskirts displayed. They saved their biggest applause for long evening dresses emphasizing the feminine look.

A white-carpeted, 600-foot runway in the elegant State Dining Room was the showcase for the offerings of 25 American designers during the First Family's salute to the nation's garment industry and the "Discover America" program.

Excited models changed clothes in the sacrosanct Lincoln Bedroom.

Narrating the show with its red, white and blue theme, Nancy White, editor of Harper's Bazaar, said everyone in the garment industry—the nation's fourth largest—was grateful for "the very first time that fashion has come to the White House as an invited guest."

Doctor from Ohio Caught In Big Vietnam Battle

By GEORGE McARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

HUE, Vietnam (AP) — There wasn't anything in the dispensary to perform an amputation with, so a medic ran out and borrowed a hacksaw from the Seabees.

It was hardly the type of thing taught in medical school but Dr. Stephen Bernie from Dayton, Ohio, was getting used to the unusual.

He had been blown out of bed a few nights before by an exploding rocket. Later standing in front of his dispensary, he was sprayed by shrapnel from a mortar which exploded on the tile roof of the one-story building.

The easy, going 28-year-old Army captain, recently a student at Ohio State, had been plunged into the heart of Vietnam's nastiest battle.

"It was suddenly the accident ward at a big city hospital," Bernie said. "Until now we could always get serious cases to the regular hospital at Phu Bai. It's only seven miles away and the ambulance could get there in minutes. We never really dreamed of this."

Arbitrator Gives New York Sanitationmen $425 Raise

NEW YORK (AP) — An arbitrator has given the city's 10,000 sanitationmen a pay increase of $425 a year in a 15-month contract, and Mayor John W. Lindsay and the head of the sanitationmen's union are in dispute over the actual value of the award.

The conflicting interpretations involve comparisons on the basis of 12 months or 15 months. Lindsay spoke of "an over-all average increase of $415 over the 15-month period of the contract."

John J. DeLury, president of the Unions of Sanitationmen's Association, said the award, according to union calculations, amounted to an increase on a annual basis of $429.90.

The arbitration award was announced late Thursday by the State Mediation Board. The city and the union agreed the decision would be binding.

The $425 in the award was the exact amount promised the sanitationmen by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller when he got them to end their strike on Feb. 10 and start to work overtime to clear away an estimated 100,000 tons of garbage and other refuse.

But the arbitration award was on a 15-month basis, whereas Rockefeller's figure—proposed by a mediation panel he appointed—was on a 12-month basis. Also, the arbitration award did not make the entire increase retroactive to July 1, 1967, as the panel had recommended.

Lindsay rejected Rockefeller's $425 formula, and called the figure a "little blackmail" by the union. The union accepted the figure.

During the strike, Lindsay asked Rockefeller to call out the National Guard. The governor refused.

The sanitationmen whose pay ranged from $6,424 a year to start to $7,956 after three years, originally demanded an increase of $600 a year.

Doesn't Like 'Wrong' Birthday

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — The birth date listed on his driver's license has upset George F. Chlebak, an art instructor at Kansas Wesleyan College.

Chlebak was born Feb. 29, 1936. Thursday he wrote Gov. Robert Docking objecting to the Motor Vehicle Department using March 1.

A Kansas statute provides, with reference to drivers licenses, that "if any person's birthday is Feb. 29 the first day of March shall be regarded as his birthday."

Chlebak wrote Docking: "I maintain any listing of my birthdate other than Feb. 29, 1936 is invalid and insulting."

He was told earlier by the department that Feb. 29 would confuse the computers.

Girl Students

Invade Campus

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — An estimated 150-200 students from Clarke College, a girls' school, invaded the all-male Loras College campus Thursday night in celebration of Leap Year.

Both colleges are in Dubuque. One Clarke girl said the demonstration was staged "for two major reasons: 1. We want dates, and 2. To serenade Loras in appreciation for Loras men."

Some of the Loras men tossed water-filled balloons from dormitory windows. Others rushed out to talk to the girls.

conditioning of the Vietnam-bound battleship. About 2,000 men are working round-the-clock on it at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard.

"I'm not going to tell them to stop now because it bothers me. I'll just move my office."

The 45,000-ton New Jersey has been in mothbails here for 10 years, sidelined after shelling coastal defenses in the Korean War. By September, if there's no delay in tests and trials, the mammoth ship—three football fields long—will be stationed off the coast of Vietnam blasting the enemy in Southeast Asia with nine 16-inch guns that can hurl 2,700-pound projectiles nearly 24 miles.

"We'll do a helluva job," said Snyder, a 43-year-old Annapolis graduate who has already created a new slogan for the New Jersey: "Firepower for Freedom."

"Our sole mission is shore bombardment—nothing else—and we're going to do that damn good."

The New Jersey will have half the normal 2,800-man crew that took it successfully through two wars.

"There are some people who insist we can't run this huge ship with only 1,400 men," said Snyder, a gunnery officer of the now-scrapped battleship Pennsylvania during World War II.

"Well, they're wrong. I say it can be done—and it will be done. We're going to have problems, hundreds of them, maybe thousands. But I don't anticipate anything major."

"We'll just cut out a lot of the old housekeeping chores. We'll use every labor-saving device we can."

GM Payroll In Ohio $747 Million

CLEVELAND (AP)—General Motors Corp. said Thursday its payroll in Ohio—the state's largest industrial payroll—was up nearly $21 million last year over 1966 and totaled $747,874,000.

Dayton, with 35,490 GM employees and a 1967 payroll of $278.6 million, was the leading GM Ohio plant city. Cleveland, where 19,500 are employed, had a GM payroll of $161.2 million last year, the company said.

These payrolls were listed for other GM plant cities in 1967: Warren $64.4 million; Columbus $38.3 million; Lordstown $36.7 million; Cincinnati $35.3 million; Hamilton $29.9 million; Mansfield $27.3 million; Defiance $26.1 million; Toledo $20.3 million; Sandusky $17.7 million; and Elyria $12 million.

The amount spent by GM for purchases from Ohio suppliers in 1967 increased $25 million over 1966 and totaled $439,544,000, the auto company reported.

the big gun department.

"Each man will be trained for one single job," said Snyder. "Whereas with a full crew he'd normally be trained for a primary job and a secondary job. We just won't have the luxury of switching people around."

The New Jersey, last U.S. battleship to see action, steamed down the Delaware River and out to the Atlantic Ocean for sea trials March 25-27. Commissioning is set for April 6.

"From May to September we'll be at sea," said Snyder, "shooting guns and training, whipping the crew into a real team. And whipping is the right word because it's a real, rough life—and we have so much to do in so short a time."

Two other battleships, the Iowa and Wisconsin, are tied up silently watching the New Jersey come alive from an adjoining pier. Docked at Bremerton, Wash., is the Missouri.

The New Jersey was activated first—"If we show we can be effective again, and not obsolete like our critics claim, another might join us," hints Snyder—because its communications and electronics system, though being overhauled and refitted, were considered more modern.

Doesn't Like 'Wrong' Birthday

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — The birth date listed on his driver's license has upset George F. Chlebak, an art instructor at Kansas Wesleyan College.

Chlebak was born Feb. 29, 1936. Thursday he wrote Gov. Robert Docking objecting to the Motor Vehicle Department using March 1.

A Kansas statute provides, with reference to drivers licenses, that "if any person's birthday is Feb. 29 the first day of March shall be regarded as his birthday."

Chlebak wrote Docking: "I maintain any listing of my birthdate other than Feb. 29, 1936 is invalid and insulting." He was told earlier by the department that Feb. 29 would confuse the computers.

Battlewagon New Jersey Set for Trials

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An air hammer pounded viciously at the steel stateroom wall of the battleship USS New Jersey. But her captain just smiled—and tried to ignore the ear-splitting noise.

"I chewed the men out recently about the need of rushing the work," said Capt. J. Edward Snyder Jr. of the $27-million reconditioning of the Vietnam-bound battleship. About 2,000 men are working round-the-clock on it at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard.

"I'm not going to tell them to stop now because it bothers me. I'll just move my office."

The 45,000-ton New Jersey has been in mothbails here for 10 years, sidelined after shelling coastal defenses in the Korean War. By September, if there's no delay in tests and trials, the mammoth ship—three football fields long—will be stationed off the coast of Vietnam blasting the enemy in Southeast Asia with nine 16-inch guns that can hurl 2,700-pound projectiles nearly 24 miles.

"We'll do a helluva job," said Snyder, a 43-year-old Annapolis graduate who has already created a new slogan for the New Jersey: "Firepower for Freedom."

"Our sole mission is shore bombardment—nothing else—and we're going to do that damn good."

The New Jersey will have half the normal 2,800-man crew that took it successfully through two wars.

"There are some people who insist we can't run this huge ship with only 1,400 men," said Snyder, a gunnery officer of the now-scrapped battleship Pennsylvania during World War II.

"Well, they're wrong. I say it can be done—and it will be done. We're going to have problems, hundreds of them, maybe thousands. But I don't anticipate anything major."

"We'll just cut out a lot of the old housekeeping chores. We'll use every labor-saving device we can."

Everywhere he's shortcircuiting and trimming down, except in the big gun department.

"Each man will be trained for one single job," said Snyder. "Whereas with a full crew he'd normally be trained for a primary job and a secondary job. We just won't have the luxury of switching people around."

The New Jersey, last U.S. battlewagon to see action, steamed down the Delaware River and out to the Atlantic Ocean for sea trials March 25-27. Commissioning is set for April 6.

"From May to September we'll be at sea," said Snyder. "shooting guns and training, whipping the crew into a real team. And whipping is the right word because it's a real, rough life—and we have so much to do in so short a time."

Two other battleships, the Iowa and Wisconsin, are tied up silently watching the New Jersey come alive from an adjoining pier. Docked at Bremerton, Wash., is the Missouri.

The New Jersey was activated first—"if we show we can be effective again, and not obsolete like our critics claim, another might join us," hints Snyder—because its communications and electronics system, though being overhauled and refitted, were considered more modern.

Both colleges are in Dubuque. One Clarke girl said the demonstration was staged "for two major reasons: 1. We want dates, and 2. To serenade Loras in appreciation for Loras men."

News Briefs From Jr. High

By TIM SINES

Members of the Circleville Sertoma Club visited the seventh grade on Washington's Birthday. One of the men gave a talk on the Constitution. Copies of the Constitution were given to the students.

Officer Wesley Barton of the Police Department explained the use and abuse of drugs to students in the ninth grade. He told of the effects that wrong use of drugs can have on the body.

Hi-Y Club members held a business and recreational meeting. They are making plans for a Recreation Night for the junior high school students in March.

According to members of the SOS Club the dance held Friday night was a high success.

Seniors Experience Many 'Lasts'

By SUSAN DEMJEN

About the first of March the seniors take account of the events that happened this year for the "last" time. They are in the past as memories and can never be brought back.

In September, seniors experienced the "last" first day of school — the confusion, excitement, and meeting of new teachers.

October brought even more "last" events. Seniors had fun as a group at the Pumpkin Show for the "last" time. Senior class was represented in the Miss Pumpkin Show for the "last" time. October also brought the "last" Homecoming game and dance for the seniors.

Football season ended in November with many tears from senior players, cheerleaders, and senior SOS members who worked in the SOS booth during the games.

Christmas was a little sad this year because many seniors will not be able to come home for Christmas next year. With the New Year came new hopes — senior hopes of graduation in 1968.

February meant the "last" basketball game and the "last" Sweetheart Dance. Seniors then started to feel as though they were slowly being pushed out of school. Girls started to practice for cheerleading next year. Senior girls started counting school days by wearing safety pins.

Now it's March. What "last" events will March, April, May, and June bring? Seniors will take part in the "last" baseball, track, and golf games. They will also put on the "last" Senior Class Play and attend the "last"

Journalism Class Chooses Four as Editors of Month

LYNN HATFIELD, MARY PLUMMER, PAT COLEMAN AND BEEZIE ANDERSON

Journalism class selected four editors for the Red and Black page for the month of March. Chosen were Pat Coleman, Lynn Hatfield, Mary Plummer and Beezie Anderson.

A 17-year-old senior, Pat is in the commercial course. Her hobbies are reading, drawing and singing. She is a member of Curtain Caller, Volunteers, and CBYF.

Pat said, "I feel proud to have been chosen, and I will try my best to make this month's paper interesting."

Pat plans to work after graduation.

Next is Lynn Hatfield, who resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hatfield Jr. and her sister, Sherry, at 410 Ray Ave. Lynn is a sophomore enrolled in the business course with Journalism and phys. ed. being her favorite subjects. She attends the Church of Christ and Christian Union.

Lynn's activities include being a member of the CHS bowling league and also a Red Cross Volunteer. She enjoys water skiing and volleyball.

When asked her reaction to being chosen, she replied, "I feel it is a big responsibility and I hope to do my best in satisfying the readers of the Red and Black page."

Lynn plans to attend Nationwide Beauty Academy. Mary Catherine Plummer, sophomore, resides with her mother, Mrs. Kathryn Greeno and her sisters Pam and Mitzi at 609 E. Mound St.

Mary is enrolled in the Home Economics course with home ec as her favorite subject. She is a member of GAA and enjoys swimming, volleyball and horseback riding.

After graduation, Mary hopes to become a nursery school teacher.

Upon being chosen editor, Mary replied, "I was very honored, and I hope that I will fulfill the duties of being an editor."

Beezie Anderson has been chosen one of the new editors for the Red and Black. She is an active girl from church work to swim team.

She belongs to the First Baptist Church and is an honor member and treasurer of the youth choir. She is also vice-president of YWA and active in the training union.

Beezie has been a member of the swimming team for six years and the diving team for three years. She has received various awards for swimming including Outstanding Swimmer of the Year and High Point Swimmer. Beezie has met tough competition in local and state meets, invitations, and the junior and senior Olympics.

At CHS she is active in the Drama Club and had the female lead in last year's junior class play, "The Solid Gold Cadillac."

Sports figure in Beezie's future as she hopes to go into the Peace Corps in advanced competitive sports. The country she hopes to work in is Thailand.

When asked why she chose the Peace Corps as a vocation she replied, "Because I feel each individual, once in his lifetime, should be entered in a competitive sport. This will develop their sense of responsibility, leadership, sportsmanship, and make a future for themselves. This way we can teach foreign people some American ways." If she cannot make the Peace Corps, she would like to enter Baptist missionary work.

"When asked her feelings on being editor, she replied, 'I hope this editorship will develop my sense of responsibility and increase my writing ability. I took Journalism because it will help me write for competitive sports in the Peace Corps.'"

She resides at 151 Logan Street with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Anderson. She is the youngest of ten children, five boys and five girls.

Cooks Have Responsibilities Of Preparing Lunches at CHS

By GREG WHITE

The responsibility of preparing lunch five days a week for 500 kids falls on four "veteran" cooks at CHS. They are Mrs. Mary White, Mrs. Eloise Starkey, Mrs. Dorothy Winell and Mrs. Nelva Kasler.

Mrs. White is the head cook and resides at Route 3 with her husband, Monroe White, her two daughters, Sandy and Ginger and their dog Cricket. Mrs. White attended school at Pikeville High School in Pikeville, Ky. She came to Circleville in 1940 and belongs to the First EUB Church and is a member of WSWs.

Mrs. White likes fishing and gardening in her spare time, but when she isn't doing this she is watching sports contests. Mrs. White is not partial to any sport, but likes them all. At night, after the dishes are done, she plays bridge and eucher with friends or the family. She has no spare time. "Good workers are essential in preparing cafeteria lunches. School lunches have to be something appealing to the students, yet kept at a certain cost. Government commodities have to be used. When students don't like something we try not to have that particular food too often. It isn't easy to prepare, so that everybody is happy," said Mrs. White.

Mrs. Eloise Starkey attended Scioto School and belongs to the

Beavers Busy

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Beavers along Fox River are chewing tree trunks and felling trees like woodsmen, but no woodsman can discover where the beavers are taking the tree branches.

Virgil L. Gilman, director of parks and recreation for the Fox River Park District, said more than 25 trees were felled by beavers in one three-week period.

Ash trees more than a foot in diameter were cut down by the animals. They leave the tree trunks after stripping off the branches.

Junior-Senior Prom.

News Briefs From Jr. High

By TIM SINES

Members of the Circleville Sertoma Club visited the seventh grade on Washington's Birthday. One of the men gave a talk on the Constitution. Copies of the Constitution were given to the students.

Officer Wesley Barton of the Police Department explained the use and abuse of drugs to students in the ninth grade. He told of the effects that wrong use of drugs can have on the body.

Hi-Y Club members held a business and recreational meeting. They are making plans for a Recreation Night for the junior high school students in March.

According to members of the SOS Club the dance held Friday night was a high success.

Seniors Experience Many 'Lasts'

By SUSAN DEMJEN

About the first of March the seniors take account of the events that happened this year for the "last" time. They are in the past as memories and can never be brought back.

In September, seniors experienced the "last" first day of school — the confusion, excitement, and meeting of new teachers.

October brought even more "last" events. Seniors had fun as a group at the Pumpkin Show for the "last" time. Senior class was represented in the Miss Pumpkin Show for the "last" time. October also brought the "last" Homecoming game and dance for the seniors.

Football season ended in November with many tears from senior players, cheerleaders, and senior SOS members who worked in the SOS booth during the games.

Christmas was a little sad this year because many seniors will not be able to come home for Christmas next year. With the New Year came new hopes — senior hopes of graduation in 1968.

February meant the "last" basketball game and the "last" Sweetheart Dance. Seniors then started to feel as though they were slowly being pushed out of school. Girls started to practice for cheerleading next year. Senior girls started counting school days by wearing safety pins.

Now it's March. What "last" events will March, April, May, and June bring? Seniors will take part in the "last" baseball, track, and golf games. They will also put on the "last" Senior Class Play and attend the "last"

Cooks Have Responsibilities Of Preparing Lunches at CHS

By GREG WHITE

The responsibility of preparing lunch five days a week for 500 kids falls on four "veteran" cooks at CHS. They are Mrs. Mary White, Mrs. Eloise Starkey, Mrs. Dorothy Winell and Mrs. Nelva Kasler.

Mrs. White is the head cook and resides at Route 3 with her husband, Monroe White, her two daughters, Sandy and Ginger and their dog Cricket. Mrs. White attended school at Pikeville High School in Pikeville, Ky. She came to Circleville in 1940 and belongs to the First EUB Church and is a member of WWS.

Mrs. White likes fishing and gardening in her spare time, but when she isn't doing this she is watching sports contests. Mrs. White is not partial to any sport, but likes them all. At night, after the dishes are done, she plays bridge and eucher with friends or the family. She has no spare time. "Good workers are essential in preparing cafeteria lunches. School lunches have to be something appealing to the students, yet kept at a certain cost. Government commodities have to be used. When students don't like something we try not to have that particular food too often. It isn't easy to prepare, so that everybody is happy," said Mrs. White.

Mrs. Eloise Starkey attended Scioto School and belongs to the EUB Church, BPW Club, Lions Auxiliary, and Pythian Sisters. Mrs. Starkey feels that the lunches should be as tasty as possible to the students.

Mrs. Starkey has more on her mind than cooking. She is active there was something unusual about herself; that is, she never stops talking.

Our third cook is Mrs. Dorothy Winell. She resides at 1027 Georgia Rd. with her daughter Diane. She attended CHS as a student and has been a cook for two years. Mrs. Winell attends the Methodist Church and belongs to the Pythian Sisters, the American Legion Auxiliary.

Mrs. Winell says, "Most of the students are courteous and thoughtful and of course there are the other ones too, but it wouldn't seem right not to have the ones who gripe." She is also active in bowling.

Mrs. Nelva Kasler lives at 305 Edward Rd. with her husband Don Kasler and her four boys, Max, Dave, Rod and Phillip. She attended Homer - Union High School. Mrs. Kasler likes sewing and church work and attends the Northridge Church of Christ. Mrs. Kasler's main job is working with people and the students at CHS.

Dear Abby: It's a Matter of Personal Choice

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am going to have my first baby in six months, and both my husband and I are excited about it. A friend told me that if I let my doctor give me something to knock me out during the labor and delivery I will miss the greatest thrill a woman can know— hearing her baby's first cry. She said when she had her baby, she knew what was going on every minute and she wouldn't have missed it for the world.

I talked to my doctor about this, and he said he gives his patients something to keep them as comfortable as possible, and for a doctor to deliver babies any other way is brutal and unnecessary. Now I don't know what to do. I hate to change doctors, but I don't want to cheat myself out of a woman's greatest thrill. My husband says it's up to me. Have you (or any of your readers) any experience in this line?

DEAR HAVING: I have had two experiences. For Number One (a daughter), I was "knocked out." For Number Two (a son), I was wide awake. If I had it to do all over again, I'd elect to be knocked out, thank you.

Enjoy the "thrill" of hearing your baby's ninth or tenth cry. It's the same as the first, and it won't take long before the crying loses its charm, and the novelty wears off.

DEAR ABBY: Not long ago a mother wrote to you complaining because a girl who looked to be "not much older" than her 17-year-old son was sent in by the doctor to stand by the table while her son had a lamp treatment for a skin ailment. The mother said the boy was embarrassed and refused to go back for another treatment because of this girl.

Then a REGISTERED NURSE wrote in saying the girl HAD to be at least 21 to be a nurse.

Who said she was a NURSE? I have worked in doctors' offices, have worn a nurse's uniform and a nurse's cap, and have been called "nurse," but I am not a nurse. And I think if you will inquire, you will find that this is true in many doctors' offices today. And dentists', also. Sincerely,

'Portrait of a Queen' More Like a Family Photo Album

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—"Portrait of a Queen," unveiled Wednesday night at Miller's theater, is more of a family snapshot album than a play.

And just about as interesting — An affair to look at with polite decorum, a few smiles and an occasional yawn.

The sovereign on display is Victoria, empress of England's 19th century grandeur, evoked by playwright William Francis from her own regal letters and the memoirs of others.

But the image that emerges lacks much evidence of how the girl of 19 became a grand dame of historic reign. Victoria comes off as a rather moon-mannered suburban housewife through all the years of dynastic growth.

Perhaps the 1965 original production, of which this is a semi-revival, carried greater impact when done in London. Transferred from that native Thames-side habitat, her romance with Albert takes on a sudsy pallor, parliamentary tangles remain textbook footnotes.

Dorothy Tutin, as in the original, impersonates the queen with willing intensity but scant historic concession in vice or posture to the passage of 60 years.

To judge by the excerpts cited from her notes, the queen was a colorless though garrulous correspondent.

Among the players who move through a clever, fragmentary setting by Marvin Reiss are Derek Waring as the prince consort; Michael Barrington, assorted ministers of state; and Nicholas Smith, the ballad singer who knits scenes together with street ditties of the era.

Dennis King, accorded costar billing with Miss Tutin, emerges beatified in the third act as Disraeli, urbane glorifying majesty to the discomfiture of the Gladstone of James Cossins.

Vietnamese Economy Badly Hurt by Red Offensive

By WILLIAM L. RYAN and PETE RARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — The Communist offensive that erupted four weeks ago, besides changing the military and pacification situations and challenging the nation's political structure, has brought a fresh threat to South Vietnam's economy.

There is new inflationary pressure. Government expenditures are bound to rise. Taxes will be harder to collect. Importers after losing much in the last month, will be cautious.

Prices have dropped slowly—after skyrocketing in cities under attack—but are still far from back to preoffensive levels. Food, gasoline and other necessities are available, but distribution is a touchy problem in urban areas such as Hue hit by the Red assault.

Much will depend on the establishment of some measure of security in cities which now palpably are vulnerable. If the security situation remains unchanged or worsens the impact will be heavy, with political backlash, U.S. experts say.

Economic problems were formidable even before the offensive. While prices rose the salaries for many, particularly civil servants, remained low. This in itself fed low-level corruption.

While many did extremely well with the influx of American money, there was not much incentive for low-paid policemen or civil servants to remain honest. Their children often are in the rackets, and daughters work as bar girls earning five times their fathers' incomes.

All this, along with a withholding tax on income, hits principally at salaried people and government employees and tends to breed an underground current of discontent.

Saigon's black market sprang back to life quickly after the Communist offensive.

The government has repeatedly pledged itself to act against corruption, and this has been slowed somewhat in the upper reaches—partly because of tighter American controls, partly because of publicity. But corruption is still there and still substantial—Americans are unable to say just what the scope is.

One factor is South Vietnamese sovereignty over distribution of goods.

"We give them the stuff and they distribute it," an American explained.

Can this be changed? Can the Americans exercise more control over distribution?

"It's their country" is the usual answer.

One factor, hard to fathom in detail is the people's mood. But it is difficult to deny that the Communist offensive achieved gains for the Viet Cong. Saigon and other cities became cities of fear, especially by night when a strict curfew produced a spectral emptiness in the streets.

Living Costs Rise Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose three-tenths of one per cent in January—increasing for the fourth month in a row—with grocery prices and doctor bills leading the way, the Labor Department said today.

Grocery prices, which usually hold steady in January, went up eight-tenths of one per cent. Fees of doctors and dentists, the fastest rising item in the government's consumer price index for several years, went up another seven-tenths of one per cent last month.

The three-tenths increase in overall living costs boosted the index to 118.6. This means it costs $11.86 to purchase items worth $10.00 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the January figures probably understated price increases in January.

"If it were not for the rounding of some of the figures, it could easily have been four-tenths of one per cent," he said.

The consumer index was 3.4 percent above a year ago.

The bureau reported wholesale prices of industrial commodities, farm products and processed foods were up four-tenths of one per cent in January and preliminary figures indicate another rise of six-tenths in February.

There were price increases on 127 of the 225 wholesale industrial product classes listed by the bureau, including machinery, metals, lumber, some paper products and a few rubber products.

Will there be a new round of heavy assault on major population centers?

You can get a wide variety of opinions on this and related questions.

U.S. military men say the offensive was extremely costly to the Communists in terms of lost manpower—that the enemy, going for broke, gambled and lost too much, that his capability was damaged.

But what was the objective? It is clear to U.S. officials that the cities were the main targets. There was no attempt to overrun hamlets and the pacification program in the countryside at this time.

However, the whole thrust of the Communist movement has been against the countryside. The effect of the attacks has been to draw protective forces to the cities, leaving hamlets vulnerable.

The Communists also demonstrated that they held in their hands much of the option, much of the initiative. When they attack, Americans and South Vietnamese must respond. The American aim is to deny them what they seek, and this in itself implies defensive posture in the light of the Tet offensive. The Communists give the impression they can hit almost anywhere, any time, and this that the Americans must be able to defend anywhere at any time.

If, as some high U.S. officials say, the Communists expected a popular uprising in cities, the offensive was a failure. The question remains: Did the Communist leadership really expect uprisings?

Captured enemy documents show that troops chosen to assault Saigon and other cities were told that when they attacked, the Saigon government's troops would defect to them, the populace would rise and victory would be theirs.

Long preparation evidently went into what the Viet Cong called their "1967-1968 winter-spring offensive." Troops were told their primary targets were the Americans, that by defeating the Americans they would create a revolutionary situation which would lead to a "Socialist" regime for all Vietnam. But that was long range.

Short range, the aim was coalition government. The Viet Cong, propaganda said, would negotiate with the Americans if necessary, though never with the "puppet" government sitting in the Communists would demand the Defense, Security, Economy and Foreign ministries and would not accept "capitalist-style independence."

The directives spoke of a "new situation" which would lead to a coalition regime, with the National Liberation Front as its core. No one here knows for sure, but the offensive perhaps was designed as a step in a softening-up process. The expenditure of manpower appeared to be secondary to the psychological thrust, possibly meant to be prelude to a second stage.

In summary, there is a new situation which Americans feel will require a whole new set of criteria for judging what is ahead.

One crying need, Americans say, is for a greater degree of shared responsibility, a greater willingness of the South Vietnamese to help themselves and to assume more of the burdens of fighting and defending.

Another need, say these sources, is to face up to realities. There is little safety anywhere in South Vietnam. The enemy's offensive showed his capability was greater than most Americans suspected after years of attrition. The highest Americans here now concede freely, in the light of the last month, that they had underestimated the Viet Cong.

Can this be changed? Can the Americans exercise more control over distribution?

"It's their country" is the usual answer.

One factor, hard to fathom in detail is the people's mood. But it is difficult to deny that the Communist offensive achieved gains for the Viet Cong. Saigon and other cities became cities of fear, especially by night when a strict curfew produced a spectral emptiness in the streets.

Will there be a new round of heavy assault on major population centers?

You can get a wide variety of opinions on this and related questions.

U.S. military men say the offensive was extremely costly to the Communists in terms of lost manpower—that the enemy, going for broke, gambled and lost too much, that his capability was damaged.

But what was the objective? It is clear to U.S. officials that the cities were the main targets. There was no attempt to overrun hamlets and the pacification program in the countryside at this time.

However, the whole thrust of the Communist movement has been against the countryside. The effect of the attacks has been to draw protective forces to the cities, leaving hamlets vulnerable.

The Communists also demonstrated that they held in their hands much of the option, much of the initiative. When they attacked, Americans and South Vietnamese must respond. The American aim is to deny them what they seek, and this in itself implies defensive posture in the light of the Tet offensive.

The Communists give the impression they can hit almost anywhere, any time, and this that the Americans must be able to defend anywhere at any time.

If, as some high U.S. officials say, the Communists expected a popular uprising in cities, the offensive was a failure. The question remains: Did the Communist leadership really expect uprisings? Captured enemy documents show that troops chosen to assault Saigon and other cities were told that when they attacked, the Saigon government's troops would defect to them, the populace would rise and victory would be theirs.

Long preparation evidently went into what the Viet Cong called their "1967-1968 winter-spring offensive." Troops were told their primary targets were the Americans, that by defeating the Americans they would create a revolutionary situation which would lead to a "Socialist" regime for all Vietnam. But that was long range.

Short range, the aim was coalition government. The Viet Cong, propaganda said, would negotiate with the Americans if necessary, though never with the "puppet" government sitting in. The Communists would demand the Defense, Security, Economy and Foreign ministries and would not accept "capitalist-style independence."

The directives spoke of a "new situation" which would lead to a coalition regime, with the National Liberation Front as its core. No one here knows for sure, but the offensive perhaps was designed as a step in a softening-up process. The expenditure of manpower appeared to be secondary to the psychological thrust, possibly meant to be prelude to a second stage.

In summary, there is a new situation which Americans feel will require a whole new set of criteria for judging what is ahead.

One crying need, Americans say, is for a greater degree of shared responsibility, a greater willingness of the South Vietnamese to help themselves and to assume more of the burdens of fighting and defending.

Another need, say these sources, is to face up to realities. There is little safety anywhere in South Vietnam. The enemy's offensive showed his capability was greater than most Americans suspected after years of attrition. The highest Americans here now concede freely, in the light of the last month, that they had underestimated the Viet Cong.

Living Costs Rise Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs rose three-tenths of one per cent in January—increasing for the fourth month in a row—with grocery prices and doctor bills leading the way, the Labor Department said today.

Grocery prices, which usually hold steady in January, went up eight-tenths of one per cent. Fees of doctors and dentists, the fastest rising item in the government's consumer price index for several years, went up another seven-tenths of one per cent last month.

The three-tenths increase in over-all living costs boosted the index to 118.6. This means it costs $11.86 to purchase items worth $10.00 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said the January figures probably understated price increases in January.

"If it were not for the rounding of some of the figures, it could easily have been four-tenths of one per cent," he said.

The consumer index was 3.4 percent above a year ago.

The bureau reported wholesale prices of industrial commodities, farm products and processed foods were up four-tenths of one per cent in January and preliminary figures indicate another rise of six-tenths in February.

There were price increases on 127 of the 225 wholesale industrial product classes listed by the bureau, including machinery, metals, lumber, some paper products and a few rubber products.

Easter Seal Heritage Explained at Rotary Club

ROTARY SPEAKER — Robert Williams (left), assistant treasurer for the Ohio Society of Crippled Children and Adults, was the speaker at Rotary Thursday. He was introduced by Montford Kirkwood.

Robert Williams, special assistant to Governor Rhodes working on individual assignments, was presented as guest speaker at Rotary Thursday by Montford Kirkwood, program chairman.

Williams spoke on Rotary's "Heritage in Easter Seals." He stated how Edgar (Daddy) Allen, Rotarian from Elyria, founded the Ohio Society for Crippled Children following an accident that proved fatal to his son because of inadequate hospital facilities. Allen spent a large fortune for hospitals and other facilities in the early days of the society.

He explained the loaning service of wheel chairs, crutches and walkers by the local Society and the ways medical assistance and special orthopedic shoes are provided. The Easter Seal Campaign conducted by the Pickaway County Society for Crippled Children and Adults will be launched March 5.

Mention was made of special programming next year in celebration of the Golden Anniversary of the forming of the Ohio Society.

Williams' association with crippled children began some thirty years ago during which time he has held various positions in the work. He is past president of the Franklin County Society, serves as assistant treasurer for the Ohio Society and is chairman of the Ohio fund raising committee. He is presently executive vice-president of the National Food Services Association. He is past executive director of the State Restaurant Association.

NEW YORK (AP) — From the opening number, "Diamonds are a Girl's Best Friend," to the windup when the cast sang "Hello, Dolly!" Carol Channing almost singlehandedly managed to keep her special moving along Thursday night.

There were plenty of other people around. The 80-voice West Point choir sang a medley of service songs. There was "The Association" in Dickensian clothes doing a number. George Burns turned up for what amounted to a long walk on. Eddy Arnold had a song or two to sing. Walter Matthau, fine actor, was a guest star but since he is no song and dance man and is not a standup comic, neither he nor anyone else seemed to know what to have him do.

If Miss Channing had any real costars, it was her costume and set designer and the cameramen. Her clothes were stunning, the sets handsome and the color photography excellent. One could only wish that the substance of the show had been as attractive.

Carol, a comedienne with a very distinctive style, is not at her best in front of the television cameras. But she has the elusive quality called star power and seems to be able to invest amusement into pretty dreary material. She can sell a song effectively and dance a bit, too. But even her considerable resources were under strain in the special.

Most amusing number was an illustrated song kidding the superstars of the silent movies—Mary Pickford, the innocent maiden; Pearl White, the adventuresome type, and Theda Bara, the vamp. Miss Channing in some pretty wild get-ups, played all the parts.

NBC apparently has decided to give Jerry Lewis and company a summer vacation. It has announced a half-hour series, "Showcase 68" which will start on June 11 and run until early September. ## Pakistan OKs Kutch Award

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — President Mohammed Ayub Khan said in a broadcast today that Pakistan accepts the decision of the Rann of Kutch Tribunal giving Pakistan 10 per cent of the desolate border area it contested with India.

The tribunal handed down its decision in Geneva Feb. 19 dividing the area India and Pakistan fought over briefly in the spring of 1965.

Although India was awarded 90 per cent of the uninhabited tract which may or may not have oil underneath it, there was an outcry in India because that country didn't get it all. But Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, after almost a week of delay, said her government would abide by a previous pledge to accept the ruling.

McNamara Leaves Memories at Pentagon

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The huge, ornate desk from which Robert S. McNamara guided the Defense Department for 7 years and 39 days was dinner-plate clean at quitting time Thursday for the first time in 7 years and 39 days.

The President of the United States put in a telephone call to McNamara at 5:25 p.m., only to find McNamara had departed. It was the first time in anyone's memory that McNamara had left early.

In short, Robert Strange Mc-

Namara acted like any other man leaving a job and heading for a month-long vacation. He cut out at 5:10.

By 11:30 this morning, scheduled swearing-in time for successor Clark M. Clifford, the 51-year-old McNamara expected to be skiing near Aspen, Colo.

His official departure from the Pentagon turned into a monumental snafu—the GI's word for "situation's normal—all fouled up."

—To begin with, it rained for the first time in 27 days—driest February on record—throughout the 25-minute outdoor ceremony.

—The elevator taking McNamara, President Johnson and 11 others to the second-floor river-entrance level of the Pentagon became stuck. Elevator No. 13, someone noted, just wasn't used to carrying 13 passengers.

"This is what's wrong with there being 29 days in February," joked McNamara. He and the President had to be boosted to a pried-open door, with Johnson quipping: "I never knew it took so long to get to the top in the Pentagon." They were 15 minutes late to the ceremony.

—The public address system, intended to carry words of praise for McNamara to several thousand huddling miserably in 30-degree cold, became rain-soaked along with the participants. The spectators heard none of Gen. Earle G. Wheeler's remarks and only snatches of President Johnson's.

—For 10 minutes, the President and the outgoing secretary of defense stood, with remarkable dignity, under one umbrella, until an Army officer commanded a second one.

—A fly-over of 20 military planes was canceled because of the weather, but 14 noisy commercial airliners managed to take off from nearby National Airport and down on the few words that squeaked through the water-logged loudspeakers. The roar of one almost eclipsed the 19-gun salute.

President Johnson had on a topcoat, but McNamara was coatless. By the time the secretary went back inside, his blue suit was wet and creaseless, his shoes were covered with grass and his famed rimless glasses smeared with rain. Still he managed a smile and a wave of appreciation to the applauding crowd. Then he ducked back inside for a luncheon with 40 members of his official family, still in his damp, rumpled suit.

President Johnson had his own ceremony in the White House for McNamara the day before.

"I just thought that I would come over and join hands with all of you and all of Bob McNamara's fellow workers in saying goodbye to him," the President said at Thursday's ceremony.

"I have heard this place here at the Pentagon referred to as the puzzle palace. Bob McNamara may be the only man who ever found the solution to the puzzle."

McNamara made no public response. But as he made his way through well-wishers, a two-star admiral commented: "That moisture on his face isn't all rain."

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Two tribal traditions — bare bosoms among the belles and bare behinds among the braves — are drawing official frowns in this region.

A warning has gone out to the nomadic Masai, who wander the coastal territories of Tanzania and Kenya. They count their wealth in cattle, plaster their hair with bright red ochre. The men wear something akin to a Roman toga, called a shuka, which often exposes their buttocks.

"It's time they picked up a few civilized habits, like wearing pants," said Tanzania's President Julius Nyerere. "We have no time or place for such ancient and unhealthy customs."

Not everyone agrees. "It's a lousy idea to try and put pants on the Masai," said John Keen, a Masai member of the East African Assembly. "There are plenty of other tribes in Africa with far scantier attire. I see no harm in a little bare buttock."

Capacity Crowd Is Only Certainty For Westfall-Logan Elm Clash

There will be a capacity crowd on hand Saturday when Westfall and Logan Elm clash in the Teays Valley sectional tournament.

It marks the third time the two county class A schools have been placed in the same bracket of the sectional tournament. Westfall has won both previous times the two have met in the tourney.

In 1966, the Mustangs stopped Logan Elm, 69-51. Last year it was Westfall 47, Logan Elm 44. The 1966 game was in the sectional finals, earning the Mustangs a berth in the district.

Last year's game was the first of the tourney for the Braves. It was the first time Logan Elm had ever lost the first tournament game.

WESTFALL has four starters back from last year's squad. They are Ed Cornwell, Charlie Palmer, Tony Lightle and Andy Hamman. The fifth and sixth men for the Mustangs this year have been Denny Fletcher, a rebounding specialist and Gene Carfrey, a fine shot from any range.

For Logan Elm, only Dale Jenne played in last year's tourney loss.

Other starters include Royce Woolever, 6-8 center; E d d i

Young, 6-0 forward; Dennis Karshner, 6-1 forward; Danny Fausnaugh, sophomore guard. Three of those cagers, Woolever, Karshner and Fausnaugh, were members of Logan Elm's reserve squad last year. Young was a substitute for the varsity.

The Braves' sixth man is Mike Helweg, who has assumed a starting role at times during the season.

Both coaches are expecting a good game.

"We've been working real hard and are in good physical and mental shape," Coach Paul Hoskins of Westfall said today.

"WE look for real close ball game either way. If one team has a real good quarter, it should win," Hoskins said.

Logan Elm's Coach Chuck Pritchard said today "I don't think it will be as easy as the last time we played." (Logan Elm won, 62-52.)

"We're looking for a real hard game. We expect Westfall to make some defensive changes, but we don't know what they will be," Pritchard said.

While Westfall appears to be in prime physical condition for this game, Logan Elm's big center has been under the weather ever since the tournaments began.

Pritchard reported today that Woolever had missed several practices this week because of a stomach disorder.

The key to Logan Elm's offense and zone defense, a lot depends on his play in tomorrow's game.

THE Braves and the Mustangs have split the two games they have played this year. Westfall won the first, 51-38.

Both coaches emphasize defense, while Westfall goes with a sticky man to man style, the Braves play a 2-1-2 zone with Woolever holding down the center spot.

Logan Elm likes to fast break when possible and has plenty of speed in sophomore Danny Fausnaugh and senior Dale Jenne.

Westfall's offense is more deliberate.

Everybody is rating the game as a tossup. Only one thing is certain.

Seating space will be at a premium in the Teays Valley gymnasium. The two teams invariable draw capacity crowds wherever they play. Fans will probably start flocking to Teays Valley three hours before game time.

The son of the LSU coach, Press Maravich, Pete polled 195 firsts and 73 seconds for 1,125. Unseld, who led Louisville to a second straight Missouri Valley conference championship, had 876 points on 180 firsts and 113 seconds. Miller had 681 on 105 firsts and 78 seconds.

NHL Action Hot, Heavy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Rangers, Boston Bruins and Los Angeles Kings made beautiful music Thursday night in their bids to play second fiddle in the National Hockey League.

The fourth-place Bruins stayed one point behind New York and moved closer to their first playoff berth in nine years with a 4-1 rout of Toronto before another capacity Boston Garden crowd of 14,310.

Los Angeles jumped over idle Minnesota into second place in the West Division with a 3-1 victory over the Flyers at Philadelphia. The Kings are only three points behind the division-leading Flyers.

Thompson Leads Marquette Win

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

George Thompson of Marquette is one of the most underrated college basketball players in the country in the opinion of his coach, Al McGuire.

"It's a joke that he doesn't get more recognition" McGuire said after his NCAA-tourney bound Warriors whipped Creighton 75-57 at Milwaukee Thursday night.

The 6-foot-2 junior from Brooklyn, N.Y., "who plays 6-8" in McGuire's words, demonstrated it by scoring 20 points to set a single season Marquette record of 581 points. The old mark of 578 was set by Don Kojis in 1961.

Creighton concentrated its defense on Thompson, one of the prime reasons Marquette gained an NCAA berth with a 21-4 record and the No. 8 spot in The Associated Press rankings.

Thompson got only one field goal in the first half, but broke loose after intermission. Bob Portman of Creighton, the nation's fourth highest scorer, managed only 16 points, 14 below his average.

Marquette was the only team in the AP Top Ten to play. Two other tournament teams, Florida State in the NCAA and Fordham in the NIT, each won.

Florida State downed Stetson 72-60 and Fordham whipped NYU 79-73 in the feature of a New York Madison Square Garden twinbill after Manhattan routed Connecticut 83-69.

Reds Submit Final Offers To Holdouts

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds have submitted "final" proposals to eight unsigned players, including four regular, and the players are still maintaining firm stands. The players officially become holdouts today.

Assistant General Manager Phil Seghi said he talked Thursday to outfielders Vada Pinson and Pete Rose, pitchers Mel Queen and Jay Ritchie, infielder Hal McCrae and the report was the same — none would agree to terms.

Seghi said he also has had no luck with pitcher Jim Maloney, second baseman Tommy Helms and infielder Chico Ruiz.

Pinson, Rose, Queen and Maloney are regular starters.

"We have exchanged ideas," Seghi said, "and from now on we'll play it by ear."

Reds Submit Final Offers To Holdouts

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds have submitted "final" proposals to eight unsigned players, including four regulars, and the players are still maintaining firm stands. The players officially become holdouts today.

Assistant General Manager Phil Seghi said he talked Thursday to outfielders Vada Pinson and Pete Rose, pitchers Mel Queen and Jay Ritchie, infielder Hal McGee and the report was the same — none would agree to terms.

Seghi said he also has had no luck with pitcher Jim Maloney, second baseman Tommy Helms and infielder Chico Ruiz.

Pinson, Rose, Queen and Maloney are regular starters. "We have exchanged ideas," Seghi said, "and from now on we'll play it by ear."

NHL Action Hot, Heavy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

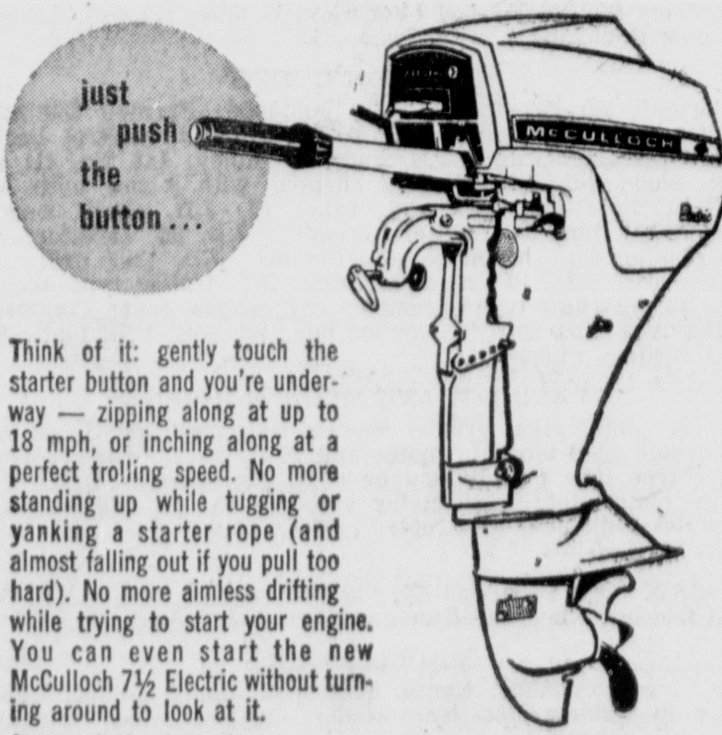

The New York Rangers, Boston Bruins and Los Angeles Kings made beautiful music Thursday night in their bids to play second fiddle in the National Hockey League.

Jean Ratelle continued his torrid play with his 26th and 27th goals as the Rangers whipped the Red Wings in Detroit 4-2, and climbed within a point of second-place Chicago in the East Division.

The fourth-place Bruins stayed one point behind New York and moved closer to their first playoff berth in nine years with a 4-1 rout of Toronto before another capacity Boston Garden crowd of 14,310.

Los Angeles jumped over idle Minnesota into second place in the West Division with a 3-1 victory over the Flyers at Philadelphia. The Kings are only three points behind the division-leading Flyers.

NEW...the world's first electric starting 7 1/2 hp outboard motor!

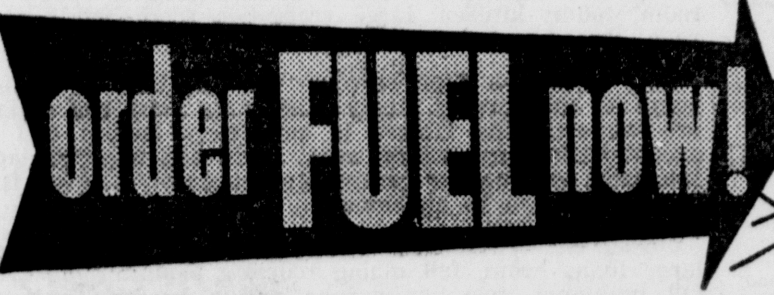

Think of it: gently touch the starter button and you're underway — zipping along at up to 18 mph, or inching along at a perfect trolling speed. No more standing up while tugging or yanking a starter rope (and almost falling off if you pull too hard). No more aimless drifting while trying to start your engine. You can even start the new McCulloch 7 1/2 Electric without turning around to look at it.

Just push the button! You'll like its super-quiet operation; smooth, steady idle. And, it won't load-up and stall — even when you troll for hours.

No other small outboard makes your boating so easy, because no other small outboard has the electric starting feature. Best of all, it costs only a few dollars more than a standard 7 1/2.

Try starting any other small outboard — then, come on in and push the button!

300 Athletes Start Assault On Track Records Tonight

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Staff Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —

More than 300 athletes start their assault on the record book tonight when the Big Ten opens its annual indoor track and field championships.

The glittering field includes 10 titleholders and most of the talented runners and jumpers who smashed 38 indoor and outdoor records during the 1967 season.

Wisconsin is favored to retain its crown and chalk up its third championship in four years. But stern competition is expected to come from Iowa, Michigan State and Ohio State.

Preliminaries highlight tonight's program with only one final event — the long jump — scheduled. The trials and semis will determine the qualifiers for Saturday's 14-event card.

Ohio State Coach Bob Epskamp is confident records will fall on the lightning-fast French Field House track. But he boldly predicted that half of the 10 returning titlists would not repeat because of stiff competition.

Wisconsin's balanced squad boasts three defending champs in Mike Butler in the high and low hurdles; Ray Arrington in the half-mile and Bob Hawke in the shot put.

Butler's times of 8.2 and 7.6 seconds in the high and low hurdles, respectively, are Big Ten standards. Arrington also holds the 880 mark with a 1:50.3 clocking.

Iowa has two titlists as does Michigan State. The Hawks count on Mike Mondane in the 440 and Larry Wiecek in the mile while Michigan State banks on Pat Wilson in the 600 and Roland Carter in the pole vault.

Wiecek's 4:05.3 in the mile is a conference record and Carter already has topped the existing pole vault mark of 15 feet, 8 1/4 inches with a vault of 16-1 1/2.

Other returning defending champs include Ohio State's Ralph Marinello in the long jump; Hubie Bryant of Minnesota in the 60-yard dash and Doug Conquest of Purdue in the 1000-yard run.

Records in the 1000, two mile and pole vault already have been surpassed in meets this winter and the mile and high jump marks have been equalled.

Heavyweight Contenders Trade Barbs

RHINEBECK, N.Y. (AP) — If their combat in the ring is as good as their verbal war from the training camps, there should be plenty of fireworks when feuding Joe Frazier and Buster Mathis meet face to face in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Frazier, a fiery puncher in his workouts as well as regular fights, has been popping off from Kiamasha Lake on how he expects to "take out Buster in six or seven rounds or maybe earlier."

The brawny, 5-foot-11 1/2, 205-pound Philadelphian undoubtedly has been trying to get Buster mad. He has needed his giant foe with remarks that "he runs like a thief," "he's chicken-hearted," and "he can't punch."

When these words were passed on to the 6-3, 245-pounder from Grand Rapids, he replied quickly with a few caustic cracks of his own.

"He's a buffoon," said Mathis, "a nitwit for saying those things. He's talking about ending it in five, six or seven rounds because that's all he'll be able to go."

Art Wall Leads

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — Art Wall of Honesdale, Pa., shot six birdies Thursday enroute to a seven-under-par 65 and the first round lead in the $15,000 Maracaibo Open golf tournament.

300 Athletes Start Assault On Track Records Tonight

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —

More than 300 athletes start their assault on the record book tonight when the Big Ten opens its annual indoor track and field championships.

The glittering field includes 10 titleholders and most of the talented runners and jumpers who smashed 38 indoor and outdoor records during the 1967 season.

Wisconsin is favored to retain its crown and chalk up its third championship in four years. But stern competition is expected to come from Iowa, Michigan State and Ohio State.

Preliminaries highlight tonight's program with only one final event — the long jump — scheduled. The trials and semifinals will determine the qualifiers for Saturday's 14-event card.

Ohio State Coach Bob Epskamp is confident records will fall on the lightning-fast French Field House track. But he boldly predicted that half of the 10 returning titlists would not repeat because of stiff competition.

Wisconsin's balanced squad boasts three defending champs in Mike Butler in the high and low hurdles; Ray Arrington in the half-mile and Bob Hawke in the shot put.

Butler's times of 8.2 and 7.6 seconds in the high and low hurdles, respectively, are Big Ten standards. Arrington also holds the 880 mark with a 1:50.3 clocking.

Iowa has two titlists as does Michigan State. The Hawks count on Mike Mondane in the 440 and Larry Wiecek in the mile while Michigan State banks on Pat Wilson in the 600 and Roland Carter in the pole vault.

Wiecek's 4:05.3 in the mile is a conference record and Carter already has topped the existing pole vault mark of 15 feet, 8 1/4 inches with a vault of 16-1 1/2.

Other returning defending champs include Ohio State's Ralph Marinello in the long jump; Hubie Bryant of Minnesota in the 60-year dash and Doug Conquest of Purdue in the 1000-yard run.

Records in the 1000, two mile and pole vault already have been surpassed in meets this winter and the mile and high jump marks have been equalled.

Heavyweight Contenders Trade Barbs

RHINEBECK, N.Y. (AP) — If their combat in the ring is as good as their verbal war from the training camps, there should be plenty of fireworks when feuding Joe Frazier and Buster Mathis meet face to face in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Frazier, a fiery puncher in his workouts as well regular fights, has been popping off from Kiamasha Lake on how he expects to "take out Buster in six or seven rounds or maybe earlier."

The brawny, 5-foot-11 1/2, 205-pound Philadelphia undoubtedly has been trying to get Buster mad. He has needled his giant foe with remarks that "he runs like a thief"; "he's chicken-hearted," and "he can't punch."

When these words were passed on to the 6-3, 245-pounder from Grand Rapids, he replied quickly with a few caustic cracks of his own.

"He's a buffoon," said Mathis, "a nitwit for saying those things. He's talking about ending it in five, six or seven rounds because that's all he'll be able to go."

Art Wall Leads
MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — Art Wall of Honesdale, Pa., shot six birdies Thursday enroute to a seven-under-par 65 and the first round lead in the $15,000 Maracaibo Open golf tournament.

WILLIAMSPORT NEWS

By Ron Beatty — Phone 986-2581

The Williamsport Child Study League will present a fashion show "Hats Off to Fashion" Tuesday March 19th, 8 p. m. at Westfall High School Auditorium. Adult, teenage and children's fashions are to be featured. Local models (live, of course) are to be used. This may be someone's big chance. We had a girl from Williamsport in last year's show who wanted to be a professional. Only thing, she was kind of hefty. She went to New York anyway and by gosh the other night we saw her on television . . . made good wrestling on some show called "Meet the Press."

Do you ever wonder where they get the titles for television shows? Well, you might not believe this but I found out one originated right here. It was after a Westfall - Logan Elm game. A producer saw the referees tearing down the pike and came up with "Run for Your Life". They were trying to get "lost in space," but were caught in a "dragnet" by Deputy Sheriff Warren Straley on his "rat patrol." He took them to "traffic court." "To tell the truth," I wasn't an "eyewitness." It was more of a "family affair." "My three sons" told me.

Have you noticed that there is a lot of hockey on television lately. I asked several people around town if they ever played hockey, but couldn't find any that had. Changed it to hockey and couldn't find any that hadn't.

Talent Show was Monday night. If you didn't go, you should have. You'll probably never get to see some of those acts again anywhere again. There were cowboys, wolves, soldiers, dancers, singers, piano and organ players to name a few. There couldn't have been anyone in that audience who didn't appreciate and enjoy the show. MC was a fellow named Johnson from Circleville. Ed, I think they said. He didn't seem nervous or anything. I bet if Williamsport ever gets a radio station he could get right on.

Ray Valone likes to experiment with plants and trees. I don't know what he's going to come up with this year. Last year he almost had a winner. He crossed his buttercups with his hickory nuts. He says the buttercups were good but the hiccups were hard to get rid of.

The Junior and Senior Deercreek Livestock Clubs will meet on the 2nd and 4th Tuesday of each month. Elections of officers will be held at their first meeting on March 12, at the Williamsport school auditorium. Meetings will be from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. Senior advisers are George Hamman and Alfred Johnson Junior advisers are Paul Schein, Gene Schleich, Clark Hunsicker and Paul Fen-

29 Women Get Chance At Eligibles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "It's the nicest collection I've ever seen," cooed a platinum blonde model as she scanned 29 wealthy bachelors who threw a posh party in a ballroom by the sea to find "the right girl." Twenty-nine girls, chosen from 10,000 applicants, were wine, dined and presented with solid gold pins by the wife-hunting men about town on the traditional day for the girls to chase, Feb. 29, Leap Year Day. The bachelors, all of whom must earn over $25,000 a year to be a "29-er," include a British millionaire who docked his yacht in Fort Lauderdale several years ago and just hasn't decided to move on yet, a state legislator, doctors, dentists and corporation executives for the asking.

"As soon as I heard about it I raced like mad and took my picture down in person," said Joan Gordon, the smiling model in a low-cut pink gown. "I didn't believe there were so many eligible bachelors in town."

The girls selected were not exactly the short-order-cook type with dreams of meeting a millionaire.

An architect's consultant, a casting director for a network television show, a New York actress, a doctor of psychology, a model, an airline stewardess and a handful of school teachers were among those selected.

The party-goers discussed books, plays and about the only avenue of discussion not open was the ladies' ages.

"You could say I'm between 20 and 40," said one and then upon learning the median age was about 30 said: "Be a dear and change that to 27 to 35."

stermaker. The only thing that grows faster than their animals are the fish stories at the barber shop.

Sam Speakman says he and a companion caught a 7 pound catfish and five bass fishing through the ice last Sunday. Wonder what kind of bait, a 7 pound catfish and five bass would use when they go fishing.

I overheard two men talking over coffee at the restaurant yesterday morning. One was complaining that he had gone to bed with a headache and woke up with a headache. Other guy said that was nothing . . . happened to him every night. He's the only person I know who sees flying saucers and knows where they come from . . . Right out of the cupboard.

(Continued from Page 1) in the country," increased aid for older students who want to attend college and greater federal support for adult basic education.

—Reform of the welfare system to set "uniform national standards of assistance at least as high as the annual 'poverty level' of income—now $3,335 for an urban family of four.

—Development of a "national system of income supplementation" to provide "those who can work or who do work any necessary supplements in such a way as to develop incentives for full employment" and to give those who cannot work "a minimum standard or decent living." This is somewhat similar to previous proposals for a guaranteed annual income.

—Require the federal government to pay 90 per cent of total welfare costs, eliminate residence requirements for welfare payments, lift the current freeze on aid to dependent children, and knock out the controversial "man in the house" rule designed to curb illegitimate births among mothers on welfare.

—Enactment of a federal open-housing law covering sale or rental of all housing—including single-family homes—and the placement of more low-income housing outside slum areas.

—Steps to "bring within the reach of low and moderate income families within the next five years six million new and existing units of decent housing, beginning with 600,000 units in the next year."

—Expansion of rent supplements, model-cities, urban-renewal and public-housing programs, plus enactment of an "ownership supplement program" to help low-income families buy homes.

The commission reported little has been done since last summer to remove riot causes. "In several cities," it said, "the principal official response has been to train and equip the police with more sophisticated weapons."

"... The commission condemns moves to equip police departments with mass destruction weapons, such as automatic rifles, machine guns and tanks. Weapons which are designed to destroy, not to control, have no place in densely populated urban communities."

More Negro policemen should be recruited, it said. And it proposed that slum youngsters aged 17 and 21 be hired by cities as "community service officers" with the federal government paying 90 per cent of their salaries.

The presidential panel criticized certain news media, saying it exaggerated both the mood and the events in the riots and had routinely failed to report on slum conditions.

The commission said the Black Power movement is playing into the hands of white racists.

Black Power advocates bill themselves as militants, it said, "yet they have retreated from a direct confrontation with American society on the issue of integration and, by preaching separatism, unconsciously function as an accommodation to white racism."

The report was signed unanimously although the commission conceded "some differences remain" among its members.

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) —

George Romney, who seldom met a voter he didn't try to persuade, admitted in the end the people really weren't interested. And so, in the words of an associate, he took the last opportunity available to exit gracefully from an exhausting, futile Republican presidential campaign that covered barely 100 days—but ranged over half the world.

Actually, by the time those 100 days began, defeat was probably certain.

But until he withdrew, Romney wouldn't even talk about the possibility. "I expect to win," was all he would say when people asked him who he would favor for the GOP nomination if he couldn't have it.

Week after week the gray-haired governor set out from his state capital at Lansing, Mich., to grip strange hands, shake his fist at the unconvinced, talk himself hoarse. He milked a cow, ran a mile, risked a ski slope.

The quest covered tens of thousands of miles, cost hundreds of thousands of dollars—$275,000 in New Hampshire alone. That outlay of money and effort guaranteed him nothing

Recordings, Groups Get Grammy Nod

'Up, Up and Away' Carries Off 6 Separate Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — The lifting song, "Up, Up and Away," carried off six Grammy awards on Thursday night as the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences chose the best recordings of 1967.

"Gentle on My Mind" won four, in folk and country categories, depending on who sag it. "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" won four, proving that the Beatles of Liverpool haven't lost their magic.

Duke Ellington won with "Far East Suite" in the large group jazz category. He and the late Billy Strayhorn also won for "Far East Suite" when the academy's trustees gave a "special merit" Grammy. Going to the stage from his seat beside conductor Leopold Stokowski for the second time, Ellington said, "I told Maestro Stokowski that people are nice to me when I'm with him."

Classical album of the year was a tie between Berg's "Wozzeck," by the Paris National Opera conducted by Pierre Boulez, and Mahler's "Eighth Symphony," the London Symphony Orchestra and Chorus conducted by Leonard Bernstein.

Illinois Sen. Everett Dirksen won the spoken word award for his record of "Gallant Men."

"Up, Up and Away," composed by Jim Webb, won as pop song of the year. As sung by the 5th Dimension, it won as record of the year, best performance by a vocal group, best contemporary single and best contemporary group performance. As sung by the Johnny Mann Singers, it won "best performance by a chorus."

Woman Notes '25th' Birthday

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman born 104 years ago celebrated her 25th birthday Thursday. "I don't look too bad for 25," said Mrs. Juliana Boudinot, who was born in Springfield, Ill., Feb. 29, 1864.

Because of Leap Year, she misses out on three birthdays every four years.

But, she doesn't mind having a Leap Year birthdate. "Birthdays are wonderful when I was a kid," she said. "I got four times as many gifts as anyone else. It was a big celebration—like having a wedding."

Mrs. Boudinot, who drinks a can of beer a day, even though "it's not like it used to be," advises: "live right, live longer," and "drink beer."

NEW YORK (AP) — To many whites who do not think of themselves as unjust, one of the hardest parts of the President's riot commission report to accept will be the stress on "white racism" as a major cause of America's racial turmoil.

Yet this indictment has been "anded down by such respected leaders as the NAACP's Roy Wilkins, Massachusetts Republican Edward Brooke, the only Negro U.S. Senator, and Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner.

It has been endorsed in the first wave of decidedly favorable reaction ranging from Black Power Chairman Floyd McKissick of the Congress of Racial Equality to John A. McDermott, white director of Chicago's Catholic Interracial Council.

Sihanouk Warns He'll Retire

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, said Thursday unless Cambodian Communist rebels call off their insurgency he would step down and turn the government over to a general.

Sihanouk threatened to retire in favor of Gen. Lon Nol, "who would be a Cambodian Suharto," he said, a reference to the present anti-Communist leader of Indonesia.

Government troops have been battling intermittently with the Communists recently in Battambang Province, a restless area since Cambodia reclaimed it from Thailand at the end of World War II.

to Romney to bowl like everybody else in New England—throw three balls, then have the pins set up again. He just kept rolling until they all went down.

Actually, the White House effort Romney announced Nov. 18 dates back to the hours after his 1966 re-election triumph in Michigan. He was on top of the polls, the logical candidate, telling people he would take a long hard look before deciding whether to seek the nomination. There never seemed much doubt.

A month later, in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., he told a secret session of fellow Republican governors that if he ran for the nomination, he would give them progress reports.

His reports came Wednesday, and it was a report of no progress.

Why? Over the next year, it became clear that Romney could not transfer to the national stage the mystique that made him unbeatable in Michigan.

On Feb. 17, 1967, Romney set out on a week's tour of the West to sample the prospects for his possible candidacy. He behaved like a campaigner all the way. And he soon was in trouble.

Romney criticized President Johnson's Vietnam position, but refused to talk in specific terms or to outline his alternative. It was the birth of a problem that nagged him until the end.

Discrimination Reminder Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A letter from Administrator Willard P. Dudley went out to all employees of the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services today, reminding them not to accept any work orders from persons, companies, organizations or businesses that refer to race, color or creed.

Months later, on Sept. 4, he remarked that a "brainwashing" had once led him to consider U.S. involvement in Vietnam morally right and necessary. That word haunted his campaign.

So did the race riots which raged in Detroit from July 24 until July 29, and the political dispute over who was to blame for a delay in the dispatch of federal troops to quell the uprising.

By the time Romney formally announced his candidacy on Nov. 18 his opinion poll ratings were sliding. "I have given my life to the poetry of decisions and work," he said then. "I have decided to fight for and win the Republican nomination and election as President of the United States."

Then came a trip to 12 nations around the world, a Christmas in Vietnam, and the New Hampshire campaign. It was, Romney was fond of saying, "a people-to-people campaign." But usually, there weren't many people.

The crowd of more than 200 reporters and politicians which heard Romney withdraw in Washington this week was far larger than most he drew in New Hampshire.

WILLIAMSPORT NEWS

By Ron Beatty — Phone 986-2581

The Williamsport Child Study League will present a fashion show "Hats Off to Fashion" Tuesday March 19th, 8 p. m. at Westfall High School Auditorium. Adult, teenage and children's fashions are to be featured. Local models (live, of course) are to be used. This may be someone's big chance. We had a girl from Williamsport in last year's show who wanted to be a professional. Only thing, she was kind of hefty. She went to New York anyway and by gosh the other night we saw her on television . . . made good wrestling on some show called "Meet the Press."

Do you ever wonder where they get the titles for television shows? Well, you might not believe this but I found out one originated right here. It was after a Westfall - Logan Elm game. A producer saw the referees tearing down the pike and came up with "Run for Your Life." They were trying to get "lost in space," but were caught in a "dragnet" by Deputy Sheriff Warren Straley on his "rat patrol." He took them to "traffic court." "To tell the truth," I wasn't an "eyewitness." It was more of a "family affair." "My three sons" told me.

Have you noticed that there is a lot of hockey on television lately. I asked several people around town if they ever played hockey, but couldn't find any that had. Changed it to hockey and couldn't find any that hadn't.

Talent Show was Monday night. If you didn't go, you should have. You'll probably never get to see some of those acts again anywhere again. There were cowboys, wolves, soldiers, dancers, singers, piano and organ players to name a few. There couldn't have been anyone in that audience who didn't appreciate and enjoy the show. MC was a fellow named Johnson from Circleville. Ed, I think they said. He didn't seem nervous or anything. I bet if Williamsport ever gets a radio station he could get right on.

Ray Valone likes to experiment with plants and trees. I don't know what he's going to come up with this year. Last year he almost had a winner. He crossed his buttercups with his hickory nuts. He says the butternuts were good but the hiccups were hard to get rid of.

The Junior and Senior Deercreek Livestock Clubs will meet on the 2nd and 4th Tuesday of each month. Elections of officers will be held at their first meeting on March 12, at the Williamsport school auditorium. Meetings will be from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. Senior advisers are George Hamman and Alfred Johnson Junior advisers are Paul Schein, Gene Schleich, Clark Hunsicker and Paul Fen-

29 Women

At Eligibles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "It's the nicest collection I've ever seen," cooed a platinum blonde model as she scanned 29 wealthy bachelors who threw a posh party in a ballroom by the sea to find "the right girl." Twenty-nine girls, chosen from 10,000 applicants, were wine, dined and presented with solid gold pins by the wife-hunting men about town on the traditional day for the girls to chase, Feb. 29, Leap Year Day. The bachelors, all of whom must earn over $25,000 a year to be a "29-er," include a British millionaire who docked his yacht in Fort Lauderdale several years ago and just hasn't decided to move on yet, a state legislator, doctors, dentists and corporation executives for the asking.

"As soon as I heard about it I raced like mad and took my picture down in person," said Joan Gordon, the smiling model in a low-cut pink gown. "I didn't believe there were so many eligible bachelors in town."

The girls selected were not exactly the short-order-cook type with dreams of meeting a millionaire.

An architect's consultant, a casting director for a network television show, a New York actress, a doctor of psychology, a model, an airline stewardess and a handful of school teachers were among those selected.

The party-goers discussed books, plays and about the only avenue of discussion not open was the ladies' ages.

"You could say I'm between 30 and 40," said one and then upon learning the median age was about 30 said "Be a dear and change that to 27 to 35."

Sam Speakman says he and a companion caught a 7 pound catfish and five bass fishing through the ice last Sunday. Wonder what kind of bait, a 7 pound catfish and five bass would use when they go fishing.

I overheard two men talking over coffee at the restaurant yesterday morning. One was complaining that he had gone to bed with a headache and woke up with a headache. Other guy said that was nothing . . . happened to him every night. He's the only person I know who sees flying saucers and knows where they come from . . . Right out of the cupboard.

—Reform of the welfare system to set "uniform national standards of assistance at least as high as the annual 'poverty level' of income—now $3,335 for an urban family of four.

—Development of a "national system of income supplementation" to provide "those who can work or who do work any necessary supplements in such a way as to develop incentives for full employment" and to give those who cannot work "a minimum standard or decent living." This is somewhat similar to previous proposals for a guaranteed annual income.

—Require the federal government to pay 90 per cent of total welfare costs, eliminate residence requirements for welfare payments, lift the current freeze on aid to dependent children, and knock out the controversial "man in the house" rule designed to curb illegitimate births among mothers on welfare.

—Enactment of a federal open-housing law covering sale or rental of all housing—including single-family homes—and the placement of more low-income housing outside slum areas.

—Steps to "bring within the reach of low and moderate income families within the next five years six million new and existing units of decent housing, beginning with 600,000 units in the next year."

—Expansion of rent supplements, model-cities, urban-renewal and public-housing programs, plus enactment of an "ownership supplement program" to help low-income families buy homes.

The commission reported little has been done since last summer to remove riot causes. "In several cities," it said, "the principal official response has been to train and equip the police with more sophisticated weapons."

"... The commission condemns moves to equip police departments with mass destruction weapons, such as automatic rifles, machine guns and tanks. Weapons which are designed to destroy, not to control, have no place in densely populated urban communities."

More Negro policemen should be recruited, it said. And it proposed that slum youngsters aged 17 and 21 be hired by cities as "community service officers" with the federal government paying 90 per cent of their salaries.

The presidential panel criticized certain news media, saying it exaggerated both the mood and the events in the riots and had routinely failed to report on slum conditions.

The commission said the Black Power movement is playing into the hands of white racists.

Black Power advocates bill themselves as militants, it said, "yet they have retreated from a direct confrontation with American society on the issue of integration and, by preaching separatism, unconsciously function as an accommodation to white racism."

The report was signed unanimously although the commission conceded "some differences remain" among its members.

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — George Romney, who seldom met a voter he didn't try to persuade, admitted in the end the people really weren't interested.

And so, in the words of an associate, he took the last opportunity available to exit gracefully from an exhausting, futile Republican presidential campaign that covered barely 100 days—but ranged over half the world.

Actually, by the time those 100 days began, defeat was probably certain.

But until he withdrew, Romney wouldn't even talk about the possibility. "I expect to win," was all he would say when people asked him who he would favor for the GOP nomination if he couldn't have it.

Week after week the gray-haired governor set out from his state capitol at Lansing, Mich., to grip strange hands, shake his fist at the unconvinced, talk himself hoarse. He milked a cow, ran a mile, risked a ski slope.

The quest covered tens of thousands of miles, cost hundreds of thousands of dollars—$275,000 in New Hampshire alone. That outlay of money and effort guaranteed him nothing.

Carries Off 6
Separate Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — The lifting song, "Up, Up and Away," carried off six Grammy awards on Thursday night as the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences chose the best recordings of 1967.

"Gentle on My Mind" won four, in folk and country categories, depending on who saged it. "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" won four, proving that the Beatles of Liverpool haven't lost their magic.

Duke Ellington won with "Far East Suite" in the large group jazz category. He and the late Billy Strayhorn also won for "Far East Suite" when the academy's trustees gave a "special merit" Grammy. Going to the stage from his seat beside conductor Leopold Stokowski for the second time, Ellington said, "I told Maestro Stokowski that people are nice to me when I'm with him."

Classical album of the year was a tie between Berg's "Wozzeck," by the Paris National Opera conducted by Pierre Boulez, and Mahler's "Eighth Symphony," the London Symphony Orchestra and Chorus conducted by Leonard Bernstein.

Illinois Sen. Everett Dirksen won the spoken word award for his record of "Gallant Men."

"Up, Up and Away," composed by Jim Webb, won as pop song of the year. As sung by the 5th Dimension, it won as record of the year, best performance by a vocal group, best contemporary single and best contemporary group performance. As sung by the Johnny Mann Singers, it won "best performance by a chorus."

Sihanouk Warns

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's chief of state, said Thursday unless Cambodian Communist rebels call off their insurgency he would step down and turn the government over to a general.

Sihanouk threatened to retire in favor of Gen. Lon Nol, "who would be a Cambodian Suharto," he said, a reference to the present anti-Communist leader of Indonesia.

Government troops have been battling intermittently with the Communists recently in Battambang Province, a restless area since Cambodia reclaimed it from Thailand at the end of World War II.

"White racism" is an ugly term, calling up visions of club-wielding lynch mobs and "white only" signs in restaurants. But as Negroes from all social classes often see it, it is cloaked in social customs that appear to hide it from many white eyes.

The simple act of moving to what a family may consider a better home is enough to kindle resentment.

"One of the very obvious signs of the split is that the whites are leaving town," said Detroit councilman Nicholas Hood, the only Negro on the city's governing body.

"The groups working to end segregation are trying to solve the problem, but check their membership . . . you'll find them in the suburbs, where they have moved in getting out of the city."

"They can give any kind of excuse they want, but it's still separate, and they've separated themselves from us, not we from them."

One commission member privately agreed with defining racism as the "usual American habit of resolving disputes in favor of whatever whites are involved."

The more obvious aspects of racism—many rigidly segregated schools 14 years after the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision, reluctance to hire and promote Negroes, police harassment—and other, more brutal forms common until a decade ago, have combined to make race a subject many whites seldom think of, but most Negroes are almost always conscious of.

A Negro professional man, reasonably successful in his field, outwardly respected by his white colleagues, recently slammed his fist on a table in anger while in the company of a dozen Negro friends.

"I don't trust white people," he said. "I just don't trust 'em. We all work for racists, and we know it."

His employer would have been astonished at the outburst, but his friends also professionals, nodded in sympathy and agreement. Just before his remark, the group had been discussing how they felt whites attack Negroes without realizing how their actions are viewed.

Another member recalled how a white friend of his, a man who prided himself on not being prejudiced, refused to protest when his landlord would not rent to Negroes.

"I'm not prejudiced, but what he does is none of my business," the friend said.

The incident was later told to Roy Wilkins, who commented: "The mere fact that the friend is different to it illustrates one phase of the racism that we're talking about. He doesn't realize that if most of the people in the building complained, the landlord might change his policies."
